Aboard the Train
Infantile Paralysis
The Real Killer
What Will America Be?

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS is written on "The Chief", one of many splendidly equipped trains that carry passengers between the two coasts in perfect comfort.

How long will such trains carry the passengers? Railroad men that think would have asked themselves that question could they have seen Will Rogers, traveling as an air passenger, United States mail, rearing over and past the trains as the first locomotives left their expresses, leaving them in the dust as stage coaches.

ROGERS paid $406 "postage" on himself from Los Angeles to New York. When the fast express had got well under way, and passengers had settled down, for their four nights and a little more than four days coast to coast trip, Rogers was in Chicago. When they had gone through luncheon and dinner on the second day Rogers was in New York. By the time they reached New York he was back in California and remember that he was flying south less than 100 miles an hour. Planes already built go 300 miles an hour. Men will soon make the trip from New York to San Francisco between breakfast and dinner time, as a matter of course.

When locomotives came, aged dodos said "Nothing will ever take the place of the stage coach for REAL RELIABLE TRAVEL."

The first locomotives that made from 20 to 25 miles an hour killed the stage coach. What will the 300-mile an hour airplane do to long distance railroad passenger traffic?

INFANTILE paralysis appeared in the castle inhabited by five-year-old King Michael of Roumania. Immediately the king was carried away to the Carpathian Mountains.

That, unfortunately, does not mean safety for the baby king. Nobody knows how infantile paralysis comes, what causes it, or how it is implanted in the blood of its victim.

INFANTILE paralysis should interest government, national, state and municipal, more than it seems to do. There are 4,000 cases in the United States now. Nobody knows how the disease starts and spreads. The disease breaks out nobody knows how or why, in dark city streets and in distant sunlit valleys, more than a thousand miles from either ocean, and five thousand feet above them.

SUCH a mysterious disease among swine or cattle would be investigated and fought by the government energetically.

The Rockefeller institution is doing admirable work, but a nation of 115,000,000 should not leave such a fight to the generosity of one man.

YOUNG Wilfred Winters got drunk on moonshine whisky, killed two young women, then killed himself. His grandmother says, "Before God it was not my grandson that did the killing, but the man that sold him the whisky."

The murder of those girls and the young man's suicide were caused by bootleggers, of course; the chief assistant in the killing was a government too feeble to enforce prohibition, too cowardly to admit that it cannot enforce it.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, head of Columbia University, calls prohibition responsible for crime, immorality and drunkenness among children, and says Republicans and Democrats must take a definite stand on prohibition in 1928.

Senator Borah, old-fashioned American, thinks prohibition ought to be enforced, and demands that Republicans and Democrats take a definite stand on prohibition in 1928.

BUT Republican and Democratic politicians believe in being elected, first, last and all the time, if possible. And they WILL NOT take a definite stand on prohibition in 1928.

WHAT is America, as regards its people, what is it destined to be? Indians were here first. Columbus came, then the Pilgrim fathers determined to worship God as they pleased and to make everybody else worship Him as they pleased. They would not recognize today's populations.

The city of Chicago contains 450,000 Germans, 400,000 Poles, 300,000 Jews, 250,000 Irish, 200,000 Italians, 200,000 Bohemians and Czecho-Slovaks, 125,000 Swedes, 50,000 Norwegians and 50,000 Greeks. Not exactly what you might call "pure Nordic."

What type, what civilization, will come out of that mixture?

INJUNCTION IS FILED AGAINST SCHOOL GROUP

Removal of Kirkpatrick Structure for Gymnasium Purposes Blocked

CONSPIRACY CHARGED

Scott Township Trustees and Education Board Members Accused in Suit

A two-story building which serves as headquarters of government and other official activities in Scott Township will remain at least temporarily at its present location as the result of an injunction suit brought in the court of common pleas, yesterday, by three taxpayers.

Township trustees and the board of education of the Scott Township rural school district are charged in the petition with "unlawfully conspiring" to destroy the building and transfer it to a new location for use as a school gymnasium.

A temporary injunction issued by Judge Scofield following filing of the suit halted alleged operations of the school and township officials.

Work of dismantling the building and preparing it for removal had progressed to a point which resulted in damage amounting to $2,000, the petition charges, and the court is asked to require members of the two boards to reimburse the township to that extent.

Charges in Petition

The plan was to transfer the building from the township lot to land owned by the school district, according to the petition, which was filed by Alonzo E. Monnett, Harvey B. Rice and John F. Swisher, who are designated as taxpayers of Scott township. The suit, it is stated, was brought on behalf of themselves and other taxpayers of the township.

It is pointed out that the building was constructed on authority granted by a vote of Scott Township residents and that it is entirely township property. The township and rural school districts are not contiguous, a large part of the township being included in other school territory, the petition states. A part of the Scott Township rural school district, the petitioners state, is in Crawford County.

It has been the intention of the school and township officials to have the building used as a school gymnasium or as an adjunct to a gymnasium following its removal, the protesting taxpayers assert.

The building, located in the village of Kirkpatrick, is constructed of concrete block and frame timber.

Defendants named in the suit are Guy B. Fisher, William H. Knowles and Ira E. Beers, members of the township board of trustees and Thomas C. Grossman, Charles Lemke, Orange D. Kennedy, Irvin R. Monnett and Harold Brooks, members of the Scott Township Rural School District board of education. The court is asked to fix their liability both as officials and individuals.

In addition to asking temporary and permanent injunctions preventing removal of the building and $2,000 for alleged damages up to date, the plaintiffs request that the defendants be required to restore the structure to its original location.

The suit was filed through the law firm of Guthery, Streitz & Guthery.

STEVENS TAKEN TO STATE PENITENTIARY

Plans for Requesting New Trial on Embezzlement Charge Abandoned

Plans for requesting a new trial for Howard A. Stevens, Marion attorney, who was convicted last week on an embezzlement charge, were abondoned yesterday afternoon and Stevens was taken to the state penitentiary at Columbus this morning to begin serving his three-year sentence.

He was taken to the state prison by Deputy Sheriff Vane Ireland.

After sentence was passed several days ago by Judge Scofield, Stevens indicated that he would ask for a stay of execution and file motion for a new trial in the court of appeals. This plan was abandoned following a conference, which he held yesterday with his attorney, J. W. Jacoby.

His first request for a new trial, filed in the court of common pleas, cited eight alleged errors in conduct of his hearing before that tribunal. This motion was overruled by Judge Scofield.

Stevens was found guilty of having embezzled $9,294.73 from the estate of Charles R. Ritterer, former Mortal resident, while serving as executor.

Teapot Dome in No Danger of Drainage

HORDE OF GRID FANS PASSES THROUGH CITY

Mighty Caravan of Gaily-Decorated Cars Roar on to Ann Arbor

RESTAURANTS OVERRUN

Special Trains Carry Thousands of Ohio Fans to State-Michigan Classic

The vanguard of Ohio's 15,000 fans who are billed to yell themselves hoarse Saturday as a part of the dedication ceremonies of the new Michigan Stadium, passed through Marion about noon today. According to the season football schedule one of the chief attractions at the dedication is to be Ohio State's football team. After the flag has been raised, after the band has played, and after the great 75,000-seat stadium has been solemnly dedicated to the great god Football the Buckeyes will take the field against the Wolverines of Michigan.

The majority of Ohio's rooters will go from Columbus and vicinity. Seven special trains, all of which will go through Marion, will leave the Columbus Union Depot Saturday morning.

Plenty of Spirit

There was not much in the way of style in the wakeup of the advance guard, but there was plenty of spirit, and if college football expeditions run true to form there might have been some spirits. The "thumbers" came first. With nearly 200 miles separating them from Ann Arbor they got an early start this morning and many reported that "thumbing" was good. Some were reported to have bummed non-stop rides from Columbus to Toledo.

Interminglied with the "thumbers" were numerous pieces of machinery strangely resembling automobiles. They were what is commonly known as "collegiate flivvers." And from the appearance of one lineup at the Main-Center-st crossing Ohio's "best" was on parade. For the benefit of those unenlightened in the ways of collegiate automobiles it might me explained that the best is the one with the fewest fenders, the least paint, and the worst knock in the motor.

Many Signs

That a college education is a great developer of originality was plainly shown by the labels on the cars. And labels are as much a part of a collegiate flivver as the motor itself for no self respecting college boy would think of facing his fellow students without at least three smart sayings painted on his car. "I do not choose to run in 1928," was the message of cheer on the back of one car. From the looks of the car, "I do not choose to run to Ann Arbor," would have been more appropriate. "I'm all lit up," was painted above a tail light. "The tin you love to touch," was a among the numerous others, more or less wise cracks.

The complexion of the caravan is expected to change later this afternoon as the bigger cars driven by "high salaried" professors.

A number of Marion merchants were rising to the spirit of the occasion and were decorating their places of business with the scarlet and gray of Ohio State, perhaps with a fond belief that a few of the many nickles to be spent today and tomorrow might just as well stay in Marion as go to Michigan.

MARION TALLEY IS VISITOR AT TOMB

Celebrated Opera Singer Comes Here with Mother and Sister

Marion citizens yesterday afternoon carried on their usual Thursday afternoon duties, unaware that the city was being honored by the presence of the nation's youngest opera star, none other than Miss Marion Talley.

Miss Talley accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Helen H. Talley, and her sister, Miss Florence Talley, drove to this city from Columbus yesterday afternoon to pay a visit at the Harding tomb in Marion Cemetery. She also visited the Harding home on Mt. Vernon-av.

The party returned to Delaware after their visit here where Miss Talley gave a concert at Ohio Wesleyan University last night.

RADO MILLICH

BIRGER KILLER PAYS PENALTY

Rado Millich, Expert Marksman, Plunges to Death on Gallows

Marion, Ill., Oct. 21—Rado Millich, gangster killer, once expert killer of the Defunct Charlie Birger gang, plunged to his death on the gallows here today as the state exacted the supreme penalty for the murder of Ward Jones.

The hanging was witnessed by 200 spectators.

Only a few miles away, Charlie Birger, southern Illinois gangster chieftain, heard the news of the execution with no emotion.

Buffeted by circumstances since the day he landed as an immigrant at Ellis Island, Millich died a victim of the devotion to the man who befriended him when he came out of Chester State Prison, friendless and alone, after serving a term for robbery. His benefactor was Charlie Birger, who had him paroled to Mrs. Birger and gave him a job on his farm near Harrisburg.

Tells Another Story

Birger told Millich his action was prompted by a desire to see the "underdog have a chance." But Charles R. Teague, attorney who defended Millich in two robbery cases before the murder trial which ended in his death sentence, tells a different story.

"Millich was known as a sure shot and for that reason he was roped into the Birger gang," Teague declared at Benton, Ill., on the eve of Millich's hanging.

Ward Jones, who met death when he attempted to train a machine gun upon Millich, also was a Birger gangster. Though he sent a stream of lead past his intended victim, he missed and Millich shot him to death with an automatic pistol. Millich testified that Jones had just taken a shot of dope and could not hold the machine gun steady.

TYPIST FAILS IN VINDICATION SWIM

Mercedes Gleitze Forced To Give Up Eight Miles Out

London, Oct. 21 — Miss Mercedes Gleitze, London typist, failed today to repeat her performance of a few weeks ago in swimming the English Channel, according to a wireless dispatch to the Evening News from an airplane over the channel.

The dispatch stated that Miss Gleitze was forced to give up eight miles from Dover.

Miss Gleitze attempted the swim today to "vindicate" her sex, after doubts had been cast upon recent channel swims by the admitted hoax of Dr. Dorothy Cochrane Logan.

$100,000 FIRE DAMAGE

Lake City, N. C., Oct. 21—Fire of undetermined origin early today was raging in the business section of Lake City, after totally destroying three of the town's warehouses. Damage early today was estimated at approximately $100,000. Appeals have been made to nearby towns for assistance.

DIRECTOR OF SURVEY BLASTS DEFENSE HOPE

Smith Asserts He Was Called into Conference by Fall Once

Chief Geologist of Oil Company Corroborates Smith Testimony

Washington, Oct. 21—Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the Geological Survey, today blasted one of the chief contentions of the Fall-Sinclair defense when he testified that there was no danger of drainage from Teapot Dome when the naval oil reserve was leased by Ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to Harry F. Sinclair.

The defense has relied greatly upon this point and said it was an impelling reason for the lease.

Under examination by Owen J. Roberts of the government staff, Smith said Fall called him into conference and directed him to send an expert to the reserve to investigate drainage conditions. Smith sent K. G. Heald, former head of the oil and gas section of the bureau.

No Imminent Danger

"Heald reported there was no imminent danger of drainage of Teapot Dome," Smith said.

"Did you report this to Fall?" asked Roberts.

"Yes."

"Did he ever again call you into conference on Teapot Dome?"

"No," answered Smith, that was the last time."

Heald prepared a memorandum on Nov. 30, 1921, recommending against

PROBE CLINIC AFTER DEATH IN CLEVELAND

Two Others Seriously Injured as Result of Treatment, Is Claim

Cleveland, Oct. 21—City health authorities, assisted by police, today were planning a probe of activities of a local health clinic, following the death of one man and reported serious illness of two other persons, alleged to have resulted from treatment received at the clinic.

A certain mixture of medicine administered by the clinic doctors was blamed for the death here of Arthur Jackson of Grand Rapids, Mich., and chemists were examining the man's vital organs in an effort to determine if death was caused by poisoning received in treatment.

At the same time an analysis was being made of a quantity of medicine, seized in a raid on the clinic, following Jackson's death. Detectives say one of the doctors attempted to destroy the medicine during the raid.

Two men and a woman conducted the clinic, and neither of the two men could produce a license to practice medicine in Ohio, officers said. The trio came to Cleveland from Buffalo, it was said, and have been under surveillance, on advice of Buffalo authorities who suspected a "fake cure."

The mills and yards of the Lancaster Lumber Co. were destroyed, while the stock of the Godman Shoe Co. was damaged by water.

Six apartments in the fire zone were threatened and eight families were forced to leave their beds for safety.

The fire is believed to have originated in the shingle department of the lumber company, but the cause has not been definitely ascertained.

ELECT OFFICERS AT LOAN MEET TODAY

Paul L. O'Brian of Dayton Scheduled To Become President

Toledo, Oct. 21—Election of officers, and a golf tournament at heather downs this afternoon were the chief events on the last day's session of the Ohio Building Association League convention here today.

The officers slated for election today include Paul L. O'Brian, Dayton, president; O. F. Pilcher, McArthur, first vice president; James A. Devine, Columbus, secretary, and Charles J. Parrish, Hamilton, treasurer. Charles E. Gleason, president of the Guaranty Appraisal Co., of Cleveland, in an address Thursday, afternoon recommended a more extensive "shopping" program for the prospective home purchaser, declaring that many persons buy without inspecting sufficient number of properties to insure obtaining the best value for their money. E. A. Fay of Springfield advised loan companies to loan to industrial firms, business and churches to provide additional profitable outlets for their funds. When the building loan business first started, he said, the most of the companies' funds came from prospective builders, but now vast sums are deposited from other sources.

He was removed in the W. O. Boyd ambulance to City Hospital where his condition is reported to be fairly good today.

TAKE FESS ORDER AT ITS FACE VALUE

Majority of Republicans Content with Promise That Coolidge Is Out

Washington, Oct. 21 — The verbal spanking which President Coolidge administered to Sen. Simeon D. Fess for continuing to agitate the Coolidge candidacy in 1928 was accepted by Republican leaders in the capital today at its face value.

Differences of opinion still prevail among some of the Republican "best minds" as to Mr. Coolidge's innermost feelings toward the draft movement, but the majority of them were content today to proceed on the promise that the president is not and will not be a candidate in any sense of the word.

Senator Fess' prediction that the Republican convention next June will deadlock, and in the deadlock "turn unanimously toward Calvin Coolidge," found few supporters in the capital today among the Republican higher-ups.

"Of course, there will be a keen contest," one prominent Republican senator told International News Service, "but the idea of a Republican convention getting into such a deadlock that it cannot agree upon a successor to Calvin Coolidge is to my mind absurd. There are no Madison Square Gardens in Republican conventions. We differ, but in the end we agree."

FOUR ARE NEAR DEATH, GAS EXPLODES ON YACHT

St. Petersburgh, Fla., Oct. 21—Four men were probably fatally injured and a $35,000 yacht, the Josephine, was totally destroyed today when two 100-gallon tanks of gasoline blew up.

Van Jefferson Chandler, Jack Hayward, Henry Lewis all from Gulfport, Miss., and Charles H. Hathaway, member of the park board, a bystander, are in the Mound Park Hospital, seriously burned. The men were on a cruise to New York. The boat was owned by H. C. West, of New Orleans.

Loaded to capacity with gasoline the yacht had just pulled out of its slip when it broke in two by the explosion. A leaky gasoline tank was blamed.

PLOT OPPOSITE CRYSTAL LAKE RECOMMENDED

Need of Landing Field Demonstrated When Airman Lands in Cow Pasture

WOULD COST LITTLE

Head of Dayton Aircraft Concern Flies Here To Address Kiwanians

The need of an airport here was demonstrated in an impressive manner yesterday when E. A. Johnston, head of the Johnston Aircraft Manufacturing Co., Dayton, who flew here to address the Marion Kiwanis Club, was forced to fly around over the city for half an hour seeking a place to land and was finally forced to come down just south of the city in a cow pasture.

To prevent damage to his plane by the inquisitive animals, Johnston engaged the services of two small boys to protect it.

Impressed with Mr. Johnston's talk relative to the establishment of an airplane landing field near the city, several Kiwanians representing the club accompanied Mr. Johnston on a tour of the city's outskirts, viewing possible landing fields. In the party with Mr. Johnston were Dr. Fred A. Stengel, G. Parr Lavis and a representative of The Star.

Two Plots Viewed

Two plots that have been utilized on various occasions as temporary landing fields were favored by the group. One is the Drake lot on Fairground-st directly east of the intersection of the thoroughfare with Greenwood-st, and the lot directly opposite Crystal Lake Park on the Marion-Bucyrus-rd.

Mr. Johnston particularly favored the second, stating that it could, with very little cost, be converted into an ideal landing field. A small amount of grading and the construction of a long shed across the south end of the field would make this a first class airport, the Dayton man declared.

No Action Taken

While no definite action relative to Mr. Johnston's suggestions for establishing a port here was taken by the club it was generally conceded that there is need here for a landing field. In all probability other men interested in aviation will be brought here later on to discuss the proposition, it was said.

In opening his talk at the luncheon, the airman pointed to his own experience as a startling proof of the need of a landing field near this city. Commercial aviation is coming, Mr. Johnston declared, and it will be the cities which have landing fields that will profit by the development of air travel.

The flight of Ruth Elder and George Haldeman which came to an end when the plane dropped into the sea near

BROOKHART OFFERS FARM RELIEF PLAN

Iowa Solon Presents Proposals to Insurgent Conference in Capital

Washington, Oct. 21—The first concessional move to draft a new farm relief bill, minus of the equalization fee that characterized the McNary-Haugen measure, was to be taken today at a conference of the insurgent bloc in the senate.

A bill, drawn by Sen. Smith W. Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, will be submitted to the insurgent conference. It proposes the creation of a government corporation to handle all surplus crops, financed by a $250,000,000 federal appropriation and a federal bond issue of $1,250,000,000. The bill provides for the purchase of surplus crops at the cost of production plus a five per cent profit, the cost to be estimated by the department of commerce, and the government to stand all losses at the outset. Ultimately, the bill provides for farmer's cooperatives to gain control of the corporation and stand future losses incurred by selling surplus crops abroad.

The insurgents thus far have given no indication that the Brookhart plan will be adopted. In the past they vigorously supported the equalization fee although insurgent leaders have maintained that any one relief bill will not bring prosperity to the farmers.

Earl Carroll Says He'll Stage Comeback If Broadway Will Give Him Half Break

ATLANTA, Oct. 21—"I'm going back to Broadway and stage a comeback if people will give me half a break," said Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer today as he prepared to leave Atlanta and his prison associates "forever."

Carroll walked out of the federal prison under parole last night after serving four months of a sentence for perjury in connection with his famous champagne bathtub party last winter.

In his quiet manner, Carroll declared that the stigma of the prison will haunt him for years with the knowledge that his most priceless heritage—his American citizenship was gone, all because he told a "chivalrous lie" to save his friends.

"But I'm not whining," he told reporters, "and if Broadway gives me half a chance I'll come back.

"I realize I have got to find myself," he said. "I've got to get keyed up. I hope I will come around to it when I get back to work.

"I have been living in a twisted world, a world of warm sympathies for men who were suffering with me. It was a world of many revelations of nastiness and triteness in man, who, were what society had stamped as useless."

Carroll praised the efforts of Warden John W. Snook and the prison physician, Dr. Charles T. Nellans, and also former Gov. Warren T. Hardy, in his behalf, saying they were his friends.

FALL, HEALTH SHATTERED, IS PATHETIC FIGURE

BEING SWORN IN AS SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR 1921
WHEN SENATE INVESTIGATED TEAPOT DOME 1924
DURING HIS TRIAL WITH E.L. DOHENY 1926
TODAY

Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, who is on trial in Washington with Harry F. Sinclair on charges of conspiring against the government in the matter of the Teapot Dome oil properties, is in poor health. As the trial progresses, he sits slumped down in his chair, looking discouraged and dejected. Friends who knew him when he was senator and when he held office under President Harding, say his face shows the worry of his first trial with E. L. Doheny and this second one with Sinclair.

STUDENTS PLANNING TRIBUTE TO ESSMAN

Football Fans To Halt at Roadside Cross on Michigan Trek

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Oct. 21—Ohio State University students traveling to the Ohio State-Michigan football game at Ann Arbor, this week-end will pay a silent tribute to Walter Essman, a former Buckeye coach, and decorate the white cross, two miles south of Upper Sandusky, which marks the place where he met his death.

Essman was killed in an automobile accident at that place two years ago while enroute to Upper Sandusky, where he was scheduled to give a speech before athletes of the high school there. His companion in the car, Fred Grim, first string quarterback on the Ohio State squad this year, escaped the accident uninjured.

It is planned to have occupants of each Ohio State automobile taking that route to Ann Arbor, stop at the cross and place a flower or scarlet and gray ribbons on it in respect to the former coach. The cross will be marked by a distinguishing color.

Essman was coach of Ohio State's famous freshmen team of 1925. Among the men he developed are present stars on the 1927 aggregation including Byron Eby, George Alber and Leo Raskowski.

KENTON GIRLS NAMED HOUSE PRESIDENTS

Alberta Libold and Elizabeth Hogan To Enforce Rules for Women

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Oct. 21—Alberta Libold and Elizabeth Hogan, both of Kenton, were named president of their respective rooming houses where co-eds of Ohio State University are staying, at the university this week.

As president of the rooming houses, the Kenton students will enforce the rules for women and will have charge of the daily program cards of each student in the house.

Miss Libold is a junior in the College of Education and Miss Hogan is a senior in the Journalism College.

An accident to a ship once brought her owners a small fortune. She was sailing from Hawaii to New York with a cargo of sugar, when she ran into very bad weather, and damaged one of her propellers so badly that she could only steam at half-speed. Meantime, the price of sugar went up, and when she arrived at New York her cargo had increased in value by $20,000.

FOREIGN CHILDREN ENROLLED IN SCHOOL

Both in Ninth Grade at Central Junior High; Only One Speaks English

Two children who recently arrived here from foreign countries are enrolled in the ninth grade at Central Junior High School this year. They are both unusually apt students, although only one can speak English intelligently.

The two are Spiro Charles Popoff, son of Tom Popoff, 317 Pearl-st, proprietor of the Perfect Shoe Repair Shop and Katarina Siegelmayer, who, with Mrs. E. F. Shardlow, 211 Edgewood-dr, as her guardian, has been in this country since last February. The boy, who is 17 years old, is a Bulgarian, and although he has not mastered English, fluently speaks Greek and ranks with seniors of High School in his studies.

The girl, who is 16 years of age, was born in Austria. She speaks English almost perfectly, and, like Charles, is a brilliant student. She attended Vernon Heights Junior High School last year after her arrival in February.

Both children plan to take the college preparatory course throughout high school, although Charles, as soon as he has sufficiently mastered English, will take confidence examinations into high school. He was taught at first by means of an improvised sign language and with his father's interpretation and is now receiving private instruction. He arrived in this country shortly before the opening of the school year.

LAUCHER TRIAL NEARS FINISH

First Defense Witness in $50,000 Case Called Before Noon

...duction of testimony for the defense in the $50,000 suit of Edward ...Laucher against his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Lawrence, was continued this morning in the court of common pleas and it was indicated at noon today that hearing of the case probably be completed today.

Examination of witnesses for the defense began shortly before 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Lawrence took the stand.

On Stand Three Hours

Laucher, who is suing his parents-in-law for alienation of his wife's affections, was the first witness to testify on his behalf yesterday. He was on the stand more than three hours and was followed by farm residents, who were former neighbors of him and his wife.

Testimony introduced for Laucher was intended to show that he and his wife separated as the result of influence exercised by the wife's parents.

Witnesses for the defense were called for the purpose of supporting the claim that Laucher's treatment of his wife was solely responsible for the separation.

The case is being tried before a jury consisting entirely of men, all women summoned for service at the trial having been eliminated on challenges of attorneys at the beginning of proceedings yesterday morning.

Appointments

WAR DECLARED ON YOUNG CELEBRATORS

Police Receive Complaints Because of Premature Hallowe'en Observances

Numerous complaints received from various parts of the city of damage being done by boys in their premature celebration of Hallowe'en, has led Chief of Police Thompson to declare war in earnest on the vandals.

In laying down his ultimatum today, the chief said that boys caught damaging property or committing any serious nuisance, would be brought to police headquarters and would be held there for their appearance before Judge McNeal in juvenile court.

"If parents aren't interested enough in their boys to look after them, then it will fall to the lot of the police to do so," the chief said. As late as 2 o'clock this morning, boys were carrying on their Hallowe'en celebration, the chief said. He also said the night men would be instructed to arrest all boys who are caught committing any serious offense.

H. E. HILL TO SPEAK

Representative H. Edmund Hill will be the principal speaker at a community meeting in the Conley School south of the city tonight. Mr. Hill will talk on community welfare activities.

MRS. MARY A. FIRTCH DIES OF POISONING

Stricken at Home on N. State-st; Services To Be Held Sunday

Mrs. Mary Ann Firtch, 60, died of septic poisoning at 7:50 o'clock this morning at her home, 223 N. State-st. She had been ill two weeks. Mrs. Firtch is the widow of John Firtch, whose death occurred in 1908.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in charge of Dr. B. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. Church. Interment will be in Delaware Cemetery.

Mrs. Firtch was born Sept. 19, 1867, in Delaware County and was the daughter of Dee and Mary Ann Caylor Walling, both of whom are dead. Her marriage to Mr. Firtch was solemnized in Delaware in about 1886. She was a member of Epworth M. E. Church.

Three daughters, Mrs. Edward Stratton and Mrs. Charles Ladd of Delaware, and Mrs. Ethel Olin, at home; a son, Fred Firtch of Detroit; and three sisters, Mrs. John Fetty of Magnetic Springs and Mrs. Dan Snyder and Mrs. Wesley Olin of this city, survive. A daughter, Catherine Elizabeth, died in infancy.

the Azores last week was declared by the speaker to have been purely a publicity stunt and had they succeeded in reaching Paris, commercial aviation would not have been benefited in the least.

Flights across either of the oceans would never become practical in the opinion of the speaker. The direction of development of air travel, he said, will be toward the establishing of regular air lines connecting the various cities of the nation, especially in the western part of the country where railroad facilities are not so good as in the east.

The speaker pointed to the recent establishing of a passenger air line between Los Angeles, Cal., and Salt Lake City by the Western Air Co. of Los Angeles, as an example of the direction on which air travel will develop in America. The trip is made in six hours, 18 hours shorter time than by rail, and a fare of 12 cents a mile is charged. So successful has been the venture that it is necessary to book passage four weeks ahead. Each plane has two berths and eight chairs.

Mail planes are now carrying passengers at the same rate of 12 cents while a charge of $3 a pound is made for mail matter. There was several mail routes now in operation, the speaker said, the principal ones being between San Francisco and Chicago and Chicago and New York.

Cites Obstacle

There is now but one thing which stands in the way of the development of commercial aviation, according to the speaker, and that is fear persons have of accidents. This, he said, is only an imaginary fear as there is practically no more danger than in riding in an automobile. As a proof of his statement, the speaker pointed out that of the 48,000 people taken up at their factory and school at Dayton not one had suffered injury and only one, a woman, who had not eaten wisely, had become ill.

Mr. Johnston made his trip to this city in a "The Moth" a small plane manufactured by the DeHaviland Aircraft Co., France. The plane is small enough that by folding back the wings, it can be placed in an ordinary garage.

convention banquet held last night in the ballroom at Hotel Harding. John Lacey, George Lusch, H. I. Taylor and Ted Lacey, sang two pleasing quartet numbers, "Invictus," and "Vesper Bells," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Helen Zuck Lacey. They responded with an encore, "Absent," by Metcalf.

Greetings from the State Federation of Women's Clubs, were extended by Mrs. William N. Harder, this city, vice president at large of the state organization. Incorporated in her greetings was a plea for a better international understanding in which she declared that the women could do their part through a fuller understanding, and the feeling other women have for their children. She pointed out that what all club women and women of the Child Conservation League as well as many other like organizations were striving for in the welfare and citizenship work had for its main objective the welfare of the child.

Local Greetings

Greetings from the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs were extended by the president, Mrs. Louis Uhl. At the close of Mrs. Uhl's talk Mrs. L. L. Montel, president of the Columbus Federation of Child Conservation League, presented Mrs. Gross a gift from members of the Columbus circles. A delightful part of the program was the group of readings from Milne, presented by Mrs. Rodney H. Hume, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Harry J. Mautz. The tables were beautifully decorated with fall flowers.

Dr. Swank spoke on the subject, "Spiritual Training of Children in the Home." Physical, educational and spiritual training is the three-fold need of children today, he pointed out and placed the blame of failure on the parents, "We are doing a fine job in carrying on the physical education of our children," he stated, "but if we are going to get beyond the physical we must develop the mind with the body. If children are going to be of greater use to God and man we know they must have larger and better development of mind.

"America will fail as miserably as Russia or Mexico if, along with the physical and education training of our children, we do not follow out and develop the religious mind. If your children fail you cannot blame any one else quite as much as yourself. If we are to save America we must begin in the home to do it." Dr. Swank left as a challenge to the parents of today, the conquering of the pitfalls surrounding the children of today, which, he said, "did not assail the children of the preceding generation."

Afternoon Speakers

Mrs. Depew Head, Columbus, educational chairman of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, and Supt. Jesse H. Mason, this city, were the speakers at the Thursday afternoon session. Forty children of the seventh grade, Oakland Heights School, entertained with a group of selections from "The Childhood of Hiawatha," directed by Miss Marian McNeal, music supervisor in the city schools. Miss Alma Ruth Jacoby contributed two pleasing piano numbers and Miss Mary Williams and Miss Cleona Clark ably presented a group of dances, directed by Miss Rachel McAfee. During the session, Mrs. Addison Bain, first president of the state organization, presented to Mrs. Gross a gavel made of orange wood, the gift of Mrs. Fred Shaefer, Clear Water, Fla., a charter member of Marion Circle. At the close of the session Mrs. Frank Sifritt entertained with a character sketch.

Mr. Head voiced a plea for a return of the old-fashioned "children's hour," when the family gathered around the reading lamp at night, reading aloud to each other. She pointed out the need of instilling early in the life of a child a love for good books and gave a list of books, both prose and poetry, which she considered both entertaining and of educational value. "Poor books and poor pictures are mirrors with distorting flaws," she declared, and cited movies, radios and motors as instruments which are routing books out of the family life.

Tolerance, Plea

"Unless a child has a successful experience in childhood with good literature he is not likely to enjoy it later," Mrs. Head said. "Good literature is the one great contribution the home can make to definite education. Appreciation of literature is not to be gained by birth or inheritance. The great contribution that we as women can make to world peace and citizenship is to develop the appreciation of other people, their customs, a spirit of tolerance and understanding."

"Let us have faith in the future citizens, be less critical of their character building and more critical in the help we give them," was the plea of Superintendent Mason in asking the parents to give more thought and time to a helpful understanding of the child in facing his problem of conduct today. "There is a great deal of time spent in mapping out helpful health guidance, which is very good but we also want an interested effort on the part of organizations in the matter of correct moral guidance," he said.

Mrs. Walter H. Ives, Columbus, economic chairman, and Mrs. G. F. Miller, Detroit, educational chairman, were in charge of the Home Economics breakfast this morning at Hotel Harding. Benjamin Gilmore opened the concluding session at 9 o'clock with a group of musical selections, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. T. E. Reed.

leasing of Teapot Dome insofar as drainage was concerned. Roberts read it to the jury.

Cross-examination failed to shake Smith's testimony in any essential respect.

Before Smith took the stand, Roberts read an exchange of letters between Fall and the late Senator Lafolette of Wisconsin. The date was April 12, 1922, five days after the lease was signed. Fall enclosed a copy of the lease. LaFollette then launched the senate's investigation of the oil scandals.

Tells of Findings

Heald, now chief geologist of the Gulf Oil Co., took the stand to tell personally of his findings at Teapot Dome. He repeated what Smith had already told the jury.

Martin W. Littleton, Sinclair attorney, struggled valiantly to make the jury think Heald didn't know his business. His method was to ask the geologist for exact dates and minute details of happenings six years ago and then appear incredulous if Heald couldn't definitely remember.

That former Secretary of the Interior Fall is laboring under a great nervous strain was forcibly proven at yesterday's afternoon session when, disregarding his highly paid counsel, he leaped to his feet and personally argued a point with the judge. His co-defendant, Sinclair, constantly is in animated conference with his attorneys. He whispers questions to them to be asked witnesses.

In Personal Feud

Owen J. Roberts, of federal counsel, and George Hoover, chief attorney for Sinclair, are conducting a personal feud that daily enters into personalities. Both are resorting to tactics when the other is examining a witness that are designed to smother the full import of testimony.

The last two days of evidence taking have been so marred by technical wrangles and heated arguments over admissibility of testimony that much of what witnesses have said has been lost even to the newspaper men who have followed the case from its very inception through all the courts.

Concerned Over Argument

Fall still was concerned today over his version of the argument. Although his lawyers refused to get excited over the point he raised, he thinks it is the very crux of his defense.

"They were trying to mislead Justice Stone into ruling that Judge Finney (assistant secretary of interior) could not testify as to his interpretation of the law," he said excitedly. "Why that's what he is put in his official position for. That's what I was put in for. If the court rules that our interpretation of the law was immaterial, where is my defense? Even though the supreme court ruled I misconstrued it, my defense here is that, right or wrong, I took the law as I interpreted it and acted in good faith."

Fall was referring to the efforts of the defense to have Finney state how he interpreted the law under which the contested Teapot Dome oil lease was let. The government contends Fall fraudulently gave the lease to Sinclair without competitive bidding and under the greatest secrecy.

FAMILY WORRIED BY CONTINUED ABSENCE

John A. Hand, 57, 320 Windsor-st, Believed Victim of Amnesia

Believed to be a victim of amnesia following a nervous breakdown, John A. Hand, 57, of 320 Windsor-st, is being sought by his family today.

Mr. Hand disappeared under mysterious circumstances shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday night. He was last seen in the rear yard of his home by his wife. His collar tie and overcoat which he had worn when he left the house to post a letter, were found in the rear yard after his disappearance.

Mrs. Hand expressed the belief today that her husband's mind has become deranged as the result of his affliction.

Mr. Hand is described as a man of medium build, weighing approximately 180 pounds, and five feet, eight inches tall. He was wearing black and white pin striped trousers and a brown checked coat and vest and a dark felt hat when he was last seen.

According to Mrs. Hand the middle finger of the right hand is missing and two joints of the index finger of the same hand are missing. He also was unshaven, having a two-days growth of beard, when he disappeared.

CARL TOZER NAMED RECORDER OF LODGE

Plans for Pythian Boostors' Meeting Are Progressing Rapidly

Carl Tozer was elected recorder of Marion Company No. 15, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, at its weekly meeting last night, to fill the vacancy created by resignation of J. H. McCoy, who will move to Youngstown on Nov. 1.

McCoyd who has been employed at the Erie railroad offices here, has been transferred to offices of the same company at Youngstown.

Officers of the Uniform Rank reported that plans for holding a county boosters' meeting here with representatives of all Pythian lodges of Marion County in attendance are progressing rapidly. Committees from the Uniform Rank are visiting the various lodges urging co-operation in plans for the meeting, which is to be featured by an address by Frederick Atwood of Minneapolis, supreme lodge chancellor.

Wednesday night a committee presented plans for the county gathering at a meeting of Whetstone Lodge in Waldo. The Waldo Pythians arranged to take part in the event.

Tonight Uniform Rank representatives will visit Marion Lodge, No. 402. The schedule next week includes visits to Morral and Mecker.

Daily Proverb—"You may shut your doors against a thief, but not against a liar."

A survey shows that Germany has 1,929 millionaires. Possibly there was a little war profiteering over there also.

A Rome cable announces that Italy will insure her workers against all diseases. Fascism excepted, we assume.

A Cincinnati wire says specialists are divided regarding the effect of prohibition on health. Come to think of it, the whole country is pretty much that way.

An Aurora, Illinois, girl has been fined $25 for sitting on a boy friend's lap in an automobile parked in front of her home, the charge being disorderly conduct. And yet they talk about this being the "Land of Liberty!"

Los Angeles thermometers reached a temperature of ninety-six, Wednesday. There's no use talking, when it comes to ideal fall weather, this very heart of the garden spot of the world is in a class by itself.

Earl Carroll is said to show wonderful improvement in his physical condition as a result of his enforced stay in Atlanta, and if he has arrived at realization of the fact that he is not above the law it may be that his moral improvement is fully as marked.

There's little occasion for concern regarding the possibility that either of the two old parties will roll in the dust or plunge into moisture. It's the manifest intention of each to remain firmly astride the fence and make a noise to attract the attention of the host which looks the larger.

A German glider expert has established a new record by remaining in the air at an altitude of 2,500 feet for a minute and a half over four hours. And yet aviators are being killed daily as a result of their engines going wrong. Wouldn't a little more attention to the art of gliding prove something of a life-saver?

Now there is a hot fight on over in the Church of England relative to the origin of man. What gets us is why the church is so worked up regarding our starting point, when its our destination which should be its chief concern.

A Kansas City woman is suing Sir Joseph Duveen, an international art dealer, for $500,000 damages for stating that a picture owned by her which she says is the original Da Vinci "La Belle Ferronniere" is a mere copy, the original being in the Louvre. We'll says this for her contention, a half-tone cut of her picture run in the newspapers shows that it's ugly enough to be the original "old master!"

The safety bureau of the Interstate Commerce commission has censured the Pennsylvania railroad for the speed with which it operates its "Broadway Limited." If that doesn't make the Pennsy's publicity department chortle, we can't imagine what would.

Aeronautical experts seriously question the story cabled back to America detailing how Ruth Elder and Captain Haldeman took turns at crawling out on the tail of their plane and throwing away five-gallon tins of gasolene to lighten its burden, saying it's an impossibility. Maybe so, but in some way the two managed to get pretty well across to the other side, and it's a cinch that to do it they didn't walk a tight rope or ride a bicycle built for two, and that's the real point.

A Berlin cable announces that the federal revenues for the first six months of the year exceeded the budget estimate by $60,000,000. Possibly Mr. Dawes' figuring was a trifle better than our German friends thus far have been willing to admit.

Following the decision of the United States supreme court, in the Chicago case, that night club proprietors who furnish such drinking accessories as ginger ale, ice and glasses to liquor-toting patrons are guilty of violating the Volstead act, it is intimated by the New York prohibition administrator that Broadway clubs will either have to cease the practice or be padlocked. Gee! If New Yorkers have to drink the bootleg stuff straight, the mortality over there is bound to be simply awful.

Statistics just made public in Washington show that the Shakers have dwindled in the last ten years from 367 members to 192. It's very easy to understand how a jazz age might not be conducive to the growth of the sect, unless its members are wholly immune to shock.

Figuring that a bird in the hand is worth a whole flock in the bush, the Cleveland woman who was awarded a verdict of $3,675 for being arrested and locked up because she kissed her husband on a public street, has accepted a cash payment of $2,200 in full settlement. She appreciates the reparation received, no doubt, but it's hardly probable that she yet appreciates to the full what a benefactress she is to women kissed in public by their husbands—or other women's husbands, for that matter.

Big Bill's Shots Misdirected.

The campaign of Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, against King George and the British generally, has been made the subject of many a jest, and not without reason, yet some of his charges are not without merit and are worthy of attention. Candor compels an admission of a suspicion that the mayor may not have been so much moved by the stir of an exceptional degree of patriotism as a desire to forward his own political interests, but no matter what the impelling reason may have been, if he has uttered a truth, that truth must not be passed over with a laugh because of the motive behind its utterance.

The mayor's claim has been that Great Britain is propagandizing through the public schools of Chicago, and he promised to put a stop to it if elected mayor. He was elected and has since been acting, professedly at least, to make good his campaign promise. The matter was brought to a crisis when the school board, which may be said to be dominated by the mayor, proceeded to put Superintendent William McAndrew on trial on a charge of insubordination and injecting pro-British propaganda into Chicago's educational system.

Among other witnesses called by the prosecution was Frederick Bausman, former supreme court justice of the state of Washington, the author of a recent magazine article on oro-British propaganda, in which he declares that millions of dollars are being expended to spread the doctrines of Great Britain in the United States. Such an article, it may readily be seen, fits in nicely with the mayor's charges against Superintendent McAndrew.

In his magazine article and his testimony was very much along the same line—the former Washington justice charges that there are four kinds of pro-British propagandists among us. "First there are those Americans who hope or have bargained for compensation should the British debt be cancelled; second, the social sycophants; third, what may be called the National Sacrifice association, made up of well-meaning and ill-informed persons herded and inflamed by clamors and intrigues and sometimes by the money of the other two classes; fourth, the exceedingly numerous British-born element" within our borders.

Additional aid and comfort is being given the mayor by the campaign of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to prevent the use of the text book, "Modern History," by Professors Hayes and Moore, in the public schools of New York state, that organization claiming that the book overflows with "subtle falsehoods designed to restore America into sentimental, spiritual and political subjection to Great Britain."

Declaring that the volume is unfit for public school use, the Americanization committee of the New York state department of the organization not only opposes the introduction of the book into the New York public schools, but also seeks to accomplish its withdrawal from use in Chicago and other cities of the West as a result of protests from patriotic bodies, and thus a campaign which had its inception in the Chicago mayoralty campaign threatens to become nation-wide.

Carleton J. H. Hayes, against whom most of the protest of the Veterans' organization is directed, is a professor of history at Columbia university, a large number of the professors of which have been demanding that the European war debt due us be forgiven in part, if not in its entirety. Thomas Parker Moore, co-author of the book, is an assistant professor of international relations at Columbia and managing editor of the Political Science Quarterly. They are accused of "cunningly according to England" most of the "great advances of mankind throughout the modern world."

From all of which it may be seen that there is some ground for the charges of Mayor Thompson.

But it seems to us that the Hon. William, at least, is shooting at the wrong targets. Instead of discharging his heavy artillery at King George, the British government and the British people, it appeals to us, he should train it on targets here at home. The real perpetrators of the offenses charged, by the admission of his own witnesses, are the internationalists here in America; our international bankers; the Americans who are working for reward of one kind or another contingent on the remission of the debt Great Britain owes us; the so-called Americans who can see nothing of merit in America or Americans and can not recognize worth save that which may be found abroad; the crowd that would give all America away, were it within their power, to regain the friendship of Europe, even though Europe unquestionably would despise us were we so foolish as to be influenced by their clamorings, the social sycophants mentioned by former Justice Bausman and those poorest of all Americans, those who sojourn long enough in Europe to come back to us as snobs.

The mayor should lay off King George and the British. They have enough trouble as it is. He should shorten his range decidedly and aim his shots where they will do the most good.

Paul Poiret, famous Parisian couturier, says the American craze for standardization and prohibition have combined to cause a decadence in the dress of American women which makes him weep. We assume Paul's idea is that, after they take a drink or two of the bootleg stuff, they don't care how they dress, which, if the stories regarding it are true, doesn't sound wholly unreasonable.

THE LOOK.

Where had I seen the look that these two wore—
This pair of dancers in a cabaret?
He, cynical and suave, mondain and gay;
She, lifting up her young eyes to adore
Him, obviously eager to outpour
Her wine of youth for him, ungrudgingly—
Oblation to a careless deity!
Where was it I had seen this look before?
Then, I recalled a garden I had known,
Wherein a marble pan thus held a maid,
A willing captive, who, with ardent eyes
And worshipful, looked up to him; his own
Were casual, sophisticate and wise.
Here in the cabaret, the music played. . . .

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

How do you take care of your ears? Do you poke them with toothpicks, hairpins, pencils, or other devices?

It isn't a good thing to fuss with the ears. Most of the things you do are likely to damage two very necessary organs.

For convenience of description, the ear is divided into three parts, known as the external, middle and internal ear. The external ear includes the outer trumpet-shaped organ, known to the doctors as the "pinna" and to everybody else merely as "the ear."

A tube runs inward from the outer opening in the pinna. This is the "ear canal," an hour-glass shaped passageway, about an inch long, ending at the drum-head, or "ear-drum," as it is commonly called.

The drum-head is a thin, flexible membrane, freely movable and having as much to do with carrying the air vibrations to the other parts of the hearing organ. It is not absolutely essential to hearing and when it is destroyed by accident or disease, there is no great impairment of the hearing power.

It is dangerous to injure this structure, however. To do so may be the beginning of serious trouble with the vital parts of the hearing organ. For this reason you must not trifle with the ear. There is an old saying and a wise one, that you should put nothing in the ear but the elbow.

Nature has provided in a remarkable way for the protection of the ear-drum. She has arranged for a supply of sticky, disagreeable smelling wax to guard the ear canal against the entrance of dust and insects.

When man was first created he did not live under the cleanly conditions of modern civilization. He lived out-of-doors, slept on the ground, and, of course, must have been overrun by insect life.

If there had been no flavored wax to repel the insects or to entangle the feet of the more venturesome ones, the ear canal of Adam would have been the resting place of many of the more humble dwellers in the Garden of Eden. But this provision of Nature guarded his ears better than his moral safeguards protected his conduct.

The wax glands are found just outside of the narrow part of the hour-glass shaped canal. You will see why this was their location. If the glands had been placed between the constricted portion and the ear drum, gravity would have carried the wax downward and inward to fill up that end of the canal. This would have resulted in a plug of wax which would have shut out sounds.

To make doubly sure that the wax shall not reach the drum, Nature arranged for the renewal of the skin of the canal from within outward. This makes a sort of escalator or movable sidewalk, carrying the wax outward.

If you do nothing whatever to assist its removal, the wax will be carried outward and discharged. Everything you do blindly simply pushes the wax inward, through the narrow part of the canal.

If the wax does accumulate you must ask your doctor to remove it. By the gentle use of the syringe with soap and water it may be washed out without danger.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

J. D. Q—Is insulin a sure cure for diabetes?

2—Would chills seemingly coming from the spinal column between the shoulders indicate a lung condition?

3—I have an inward goitre and do not wish to be operated upon since I have been told that the trouble might develop into cancer or tumor. Is this correct? Would too violet ray be helpful?

A—Insulin is not a cure but when it is taken, under the direction of a physician the diet may be much broader and the condition improved.

2—Not necessarily. Have the chest examined if you are uneasy.

3—You must be guided by your doctor's judgment. Such an operation should not cause cancer or other growths. Your doctor will advise you.—Copyright, 1927.

UNWELCOME BROADCASTING.

In this day and age of publicity there is one unpleasant dose that we would prefer to be spared, and that is the broadcasting of the Lillienthal trial. Preparations of a mechanical sort are said to be under way, and things are being put in readiness for the performance if the presiding judge should give his consent. Since the trial will be conducted near Atlantic City, the proceedings would be broadcast from the radio station there if they are allowed.

This proposition recalls a similar one in New Jersey when Mrs. Hall and her relatives were stonily facing an accusing world. At that time it was suggested that the trial should be spread around the ether. Fortunately the suggestion was promptly squashed by the judge, who did not see any necessity for making the occasion a public sensation-feast.

Nor is there any more reason at this time. This case also involves a suggestion of amatory affairs between some of the principals as well as the thorough airing of circumstances surrounding the actual murder, and altogether promises to be a distinctly unpleasant occasion. It is bad enough that a thing of the kind should occur and have to be tried with a sufficient audience to fulfill the requirement of openness; but to go further and have it bleated out from every radio shop along the street, and shouted into every home that has a receiving set and a person old enough to operate it, is unspeakable.

The trial of two persons solemnly charged with the murder of a third is nothing to make merry about. It is not material of this type which should be given to the vast radio audience, and those who listen in ought to be protected from broadcasts of distasteful nature. Entertainment and education are welcome; advertising may be tolerated within reason; but sensational scandal should have no part on the program.—Philadelphia Ledger.

BAN JOHNSON.

The founder of the American league and its only president has resigned. Ban Johnson, the storm center of baseball during the past seven years, but one of its greatest benefactors during his twenty-seven years' reign as czar, closed up the American league headquarters in Chicago with a smile and announced that he was glad to be a private citizen again.

The appointment of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis as high commissioner of baseball in 1920 to clean up the game after the "Black Sox" scandal was the beginning of the end for the man who had founded the junior major league. Previously to that he had dominated the national commission and was in reality the high chief of baseball. Johnson was unable to work harmoniously with Commissioner Landis. He fought him at every turn until the club owners, who saw in Landis their hope for public confidence in the game, turned against him.

The last straw was the Ty Cobb-Tris Speaker tempest in the teapot last winter, when Johnson publicly criticized the commissioner for his handling of the case. The American league club owners then deserted Johnson and requested him to take a long leave of absence. His resignation is the closing chapter.

Johnson throughout his long career waged a sturdy fight to put baseball on a high plane. His discipline at times has been severe, but he has worked unceasingly to furnish clean and orderly baseball entertainment for the millions of fans. So that despite the squabbles of the last seven years, the American league owes to its departed president a debt of gratitude.—Washington Star.

Dinner Stories.

The sad-looking man stopped at the lunch counter and said: "Five ham sandwiches, please."

"Will you eat them here or take them away?" asked the counter man.

"I hope to do both," was the reply.

The widower had just started in to tell a story when he suddenly broke down and began sobbing like a child.

"Why, what's the matter?" we asked him.

"Why, how can I tell a story without my wife here to butt in with corrections and advice and finally taking over the job of finishing it herself?" he wept.

"I don't see any sense in quadrupeds," said the lazy soph, yawning.

"What's wrong with 'em?" demanded his roommate.

"Aw, nothin' if they like it, Bill; but what's th' use of a shape that makes you keep four legs goin' when you can get there with two?"

"Why don't you tell some of those funny stories for which you used to be famous?"

"It is dangerous to make an audience laugh," answered Senator Sorghum. "Good comedy is so scarce that, if you have any with you, the folks are liable to want to shove you out of politics into pictures. I'm going to stick to 'the full dinner pail' and let the custard pie alone."

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Love is a matter of atoms. Dr. Hardin, president of the American Electronic association, and a well-known scientist, would have us believe romance is only another problem in chemistry. He says every mechanical work of earth, air, fire and water, every criminal act, every human deed of love or valor—what is it all but the relation of one swarm of atoms to another?

"Man is a combination of electrical impulses. Mysterious showers of electronic energy radiated by the distant sun and distant stars pass through him, drastically affecting his mental and physical states."

All very well to explain love and romance in terms of chemistry and atoms. That does not change it at all. The young man and the young woman are not interested. Explain it or leave it unexplained, it's all the same to lovers and always will be. Interesting in theory, it means nothing in practice.

No citizen has a right to defy the law. But don't forget that every citizen has a right to advocate the repeal of a law, to talk against it, write against and do everything he can to have the law repealed. There are no more intolerant people than those who are intolerant of those who insist on the right of free speech. Even if you disobey certain laws it does not mean you are against the whole constitution of the United States. Some of the most violent "reds" are those who see red when others disagree with them.

At a meeting of an organization of women in a certain city it was found that the president and vice president were both absent. Inquiry revealed that the president was serving on a jury and the vice president was at home taking care of a month-old baby. That's not bad news. Learn the facts and you will find that women are more loyal to duty than men. There is much loose talk about women neglecting home duties for civic work. The amazing fact is that they can do both so well.

Some time ago the mayor of Butte, Montana, made an inauguration speech. It breaks the record for brevity and yet it is one of the best inauguration speeches you ever heard. Here it is:

"Those policies and efforts of the administration during the past two years which have proved beneficial will be continued. The board of aldermen and the citizens of this municipality may surely assume that there will be earnest, persistent endeavor to remedy defects and eliminate mistakes."

There is a model for mayors, governors and others. Remember that words may cover up an idea as well as reveal it.

New York Day by Day.

New York, Oct. 21—Thoughts while strolling—A calliope advertises auto washing. Both Davis and Irvin Cobb. An archery school. A shivering street preacher haranguing a side street. The bachelor hotel where George Jean Nathan lives.

Those derbied, pipe-smoking men who stand near bank entrances, trying not to look like private detectives. The linen-dusted British clerks at Dunhill's. Florists with their cars. Whatever became of that movie salon? Hand-carved doors with big brass knobs, behind which slave underpaid clerks.

Youngsters of easy means who breakfast at 11. The silence around the Yacht club. A policeman looks at a beribboned dog, sleeping on a pink pallet in a limousine. And rain on his head. Ladies with wistful eyes and crooked smiles.

The shawled, gray and expressionless women sitting crouched in the gloom of meagre apartment hutches. And corner sports who prattle of a future that never comes. A crowd watching a musician step from a taxi with a bass and French horn.

Keats Speed, the editor, who has a southern drawl. The noon-day meeting of women who want to be economically independent and emotionally free. Those police horses that stand perfectly still while masters sneak off somewhere to smoke a cigaret.

A Tammany leader who wears shoes with light cloth tops. Sign: "Unobtrusive jewelry." And a beauty parlor warns: "Our charge accounts limited to $50." A deadly spider in a drug store window jar. Ewing Galloway, the photographer, and his Kit Carson coonskin cap.

Eager matinee girls. The eternal Broadway jangle. An incessant rush nowhere. Impudent pedestrians, thoughtless motorists and traffic Mussolinis. The actress whose face is scarred by artificial sunburning. Caliber clatter and excavation booms. Far as we go. All out!

Many theatrical producers are known by some special quirk of dress. Ziegfeld for his lavender and blue collars. Lee Shubert for his white vest edging. A. L. Erlanger for his cap. Al Woods for his pulled-down hat. David Belasco for his trick clerical collar. George White for his polka dot ties. Arthur Hopkins for his dark blue suits. Edgar Selwyn for his tweeds. Charles Dillingham for his richly-colored ties. Ted Harris for the need of a shave. And as for actors, well there are Louis Mann's wide-winged collars, Lowell Sherman's monocle, George M. Cohan's walking sticks, Jack Buchanon's double breasted dinner coats and Walter Catlett's flowing bow ties. The best known sartorial idiosyncrasy of all was the late Valentino's slave bracelet.

Views of Those in Public Eye

ELMER THOMAS.

Elmer Thomas was born at Greenca Indiana, September 8, 1876. He was admitted to the Indiana bar in 1897, and the Oklahoma bar in 1900. From 1907 to 1920 he served as a member of the Oklahoma senate and in 1920 was the Democratic nominee for congress from the Sixth Oklahoma district. He has served in the lower house of congress since 1923.

Congress Thomas is an internationalist and naturally wants America to think and act internationally. He says:

"Heretofore Americans have been thinking about local internal matters only, that other nations belong in different worlds with whom it is unnecessary for the United States to have contact.

"But the world in the last few years has become so small, by reason of great progress in many directions, that nothing of large concern can happen abroad without having its effect over here. If serious international trouble breaks out in Europe, it would, of course, to a greater or less extent, affect our factories, our labor, the ability to buy, and reflect all the way back to the farms of the country. For this reason, it is to America's interest to have peace in the world.

"That being true, how can we avoid trouble? We must think international peace or otherwise our prosperity will be handicapped or crippled.

"Take the new French tariff, for instance. If that matter is not adjusted, much of our American trade in France will be stopped. If France is successful in blocking the trade in American goods, other nations may do the same thing. Of course the European nations have been trying to force us into the League of Nations.

"Tariff, instead of being a local issue, as was stated to be a few years ago, has become an international question. The tariff rates of the future will not be made at the instance of American factories, but on the basis of mutual promise with foreign nations. Instead of the present system of local tariffs, our tariffs will be made on an international basis. We must have, say, allowances for freight differences, the tariff for all nations."

ION MINER SLAIN IN ATHENS COUNTY

Separate Shootings Occupy Sheriff and State Investigators

Oct. 21—Two separate shootings of which ended fatally, today occupying Sheriff William Wilstate investigators in Athens and the state today.

Prater, 22, union miner of Carbondale is dead, and Joe Dresher, a guard in a machine gun nest at Lick Run, is seriously injured as a result of the shootings.

Ohio police have been asked to search for Mike Six, 20, a union miner of Carbondale, formerly of Kenmore and Barberton, near Akron, as a result of Prater's death. Six and Prater are said to have visited two girls at Athens during the evening and left for Carbondale. During the ride Prater was fatally shot. Persons who heard the shots, discovered Six's auto along the road, police say, but Six was gone. Six is said to have purchased a pistol here Wednesday.

Mine Guard Joe Dresher, 19, is in a hospital here, with serious cuts and bruises from flying bits of steel. He is said to have been the target of a gunman using a high powered rifle which penetrated a steel boiler in a tree top, which had been used to protect Dresher and his machine gun at the Lick Run Mine. The bullet did not strike Dresher, Sheriff Williams reported, but penetrated the steel boiler shell and sent bits of steel into Dresher's body.

It is thought the marksman leaved his rifle on the machine gun nest from a nearby hill during the light hours of the day and returned during the night to fire upon the guard.

CHAPTER XXXIII

"YOU'RE here looking for a job, aren't you, Mr. Davidson?" Sally asked bluntly, still holding him by the lapel of his new brown coat. "And I don't want you to do it!"

Davy Davidson stared at her, dumb with surprise. He could not make her out.

Here was a girl who was altogether new in his experiences of girls who worked in offices. A girl who was not only as smart as a whip, but pretty, too! As pretty as a flower and as young as April. Only he did not put it to himself in just those words. Mr. Davidson was no poet.

Until he met Sally he had been able to put all the girls he knew into two classes—those who were clever and homely, and those who were beautiful and dumb.

But Sally fell into no class. "She has everything," Mr. Davidson said to himself slangily. "Looks and brains and pep."

He pulled himself together and asked aloud just why Sally did not want him to work for "John Nye Real Estate company."

It did not take Sally long to tell him why.

"It wouldn't do," she said with decision. "You and Millie have been friends for so long that you just couldn't work together. You'd be sitting around, talking to each other all day instead of working. And Millie and Mr. Nye get along so well that I hate to think of anything spoiling things here."

Davidson stared at her, his brows knotted in a frown.

"I don't get you," he told her after a minute. "But it's perfectly clear to me that you don't want me here, for some good reason of your own. So—that's out."

He laughed, showing very nice, white teeth in a good-natured grin.

"I guess I can still struggle along selling bonds," he said cheerfully. "But Millie talked this game up to me, and made me promise to come up here and talk it over with Nye."

"That sounds as if Millie has been seeing him lately," thought Sally. "While she's been pretending to be all wrapped up in John Nye." That certainly was not Ted Sloan would have called "square shooting!"

Then, once more, her promise to Millie flashed into her mind.

"You won't forget to see Millie in the hospital, will you?" she asked, holding out her little hardened hand in farewell. "Mother drops in every day at 4 o'clock. Why don't you go then?"

He seemed to be thinking it over, still holding her hand in his well-cared-for one.

"Well, perhaps I will," he was beginning, and then his face brightened and sharpened. "I'll tell you—we'll make a deal. I'll go to the hospital at 4 o'clock if you'll come at 6 and let me drive you home."

"All right, I think Mr. Peevey will let me leave early, for once," replied the girl. "I'll be there at 5. They like you to go then, because it's time for the patients to have their suppertrays and get settled down for the night."

"Five then." And he was gone, triumphant and pleased with himself in his new brown fall suit, swinging his hat and his cherry-wood cane.

Sally went back into the office to give it one last look to see that everything was as it should be.

The smooth sunlit surfaces of glass and brown mahogany seemed to smile up at her in a friendly way. She smoothed her hand across the top of John Nye's desk. She loved to touch it, because his lean, narrow tanned hands had lain upon it.

The door opened and he came in. Before the door had closed behind him Sally's heart was leaping, thudding against her ribs as it always did when she first saw him, at the beginning of the day.

"Good morning. How are you today?" he asked, looking straight at her and then at his desk.

Anyone but a blind man could have seen that the work Sally had put upon the straightening of that desk and all the drawers of it, was a labor of love. Love that does all things with a little touch of magic.

But John Nye was in love with Millie, and they say that love is blind. So he simply dropped down into his chair and picked up his neatly opened letters. He reached for one of the pencils that she had sharpened so beautifully and began to tap his teeth with it thoughtfully as he went over his mail.

His day began.

In the outer office at her little desk sat Sally, staring out of the window at the blue sky and the slow smoke spirals that curled across it, and for once she was rebellious. Rebellious—Sally, whose watchword in life was: "I serve."

"I might be the dictograph, for all the notice he takes of me!" she said to herself, grimly, and then, almost at once she mentally rapped herself to order.

"Here! What am I thinking about? I didn't come here to make him notice me. I came to do Millie's work until she is able to come back here to this man who loves her."

She told it to herself as bluntly as that and all morning she worked harder than if she had been doing piece-work in a factory instead of elegantly typing letters in a luxurious office.

At five minutes after 5 she ran up the steps of the hospital.

"Your sister has a visitor," the little nurse in charge of the second floor told her when she came softly down the long, white corridor.

"I know," answered Sally. She could hear the low murmur of Davy Davidson's voice as she pushed open the swinging door of Millie's room.

The sweet smell of John Nye's roses filled the air in it. And, pink as any of them, sat Millie, all wrapped up in her pink bathrobe. She had combed out her long, yellow hair and it lay like a veil of gold around her shoulders. Her eyebrows and lashes had been darkened, and her mouth painted, and she was laughing and bright-eyed. She looked more like herself than she had in a week.

"Mother's just left," she greeted Sally. "If you hurry you can catch her. Be sure to come tomorrow."

It was very clear, than she wanted to be alone with Davidson.

But Sally did not take the broad hint that she gave her. Instead she came on into the room and sat down on the wide window sill.

There was dead silence for a minute. Then Millie spoke again.

"Would you take that thermos jug on the dresser out into the hall and get it filled for me, Sally?" she asked sharply. "The nurse is out there, probably gossiping with some of her cronies. That's all they do all day, it seems to me."

Sally picked up the thermos bottle. It was heavy and she could tell it was quite full. But she dutifully carried it out into the hall, stood there with it in her hands for five minutes, and then carried it back into the room.

Millie and Davidson were talking in low tones, their heads close together. But they sprang apart when she pushed open the door.

Davidson got up from his low chair beside Millie's bed.

"Well, it's time for us to be going, isn't it Sally?" he asked, and Sally saw the questioning look that came into Millie's face.

"What's this you're doing? Riding around with him, when you know he belongs to me?" that look said as plainly as a telegraphic message.

For the first time her light-blue eyes that were full of sparkling anger, seemed to see Sally as she was. As she looked to the world of men . . . Fresh and pretty and wholly desirable.

She reached for a paper package that lay on the lower shelf of her bedside table. "Here's some nightgowns I've worn. Wash them and bring them back to me. I need them," she said, with never a please or a thank you.

Sally took them—not meekly, but calmly. And holding the package against her breast, she leaned across the bed to kiss Millie.

But Millie turned her scowling face away. "Don't kiss me!" she said, with a make-believe shudder. "I'm so nervous that I just want to be let alone—by everybody."

But when it came to shaking hands with Davidson, it was a far different matter. She clung to him with one hand, patting his arm with the other, and made him promise to come to see her again soon.

"And bring me chocolates—bitter-sweet chocolates," she called after him. "You know the kind—with black walnuts in them."

Millie had got back her appetite at last.

"I don't believe she liked the idea of my driving home with you," Sally remarked to him when they were out in the late sunshine in the millstream of traffic.

"I like it, though," he replied. "I like it better than I've liked anything in a long time." He laughed. He was in a very good humor and drove Sally several miles out of her way at her door in Trellis-st.

Mrs. Jerome was in her arm-chair in the sitting room when Sally went upstairs. She had brought a new book home from the library and had sat right down to start it without taking off her hat and shoes, so she said, guiltily.

"And then," she explained, "the bell rang and a boy brought this telegram—and your papa's coming." Her voice was trembling and her cheeks were flushed with excitement. "He'll be here tonight."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Today was Friday, and when I let Jubilee down he seemed to know it the way he looked at me.

It is not fun being in school when the trees are loaded with apples and when it is getting so cold for swimming that a fella wants to get busy and do as much of it as he can before the snow comes. We went out to an orchard as soon as I had fed my face, and got some red ones and some golden-sweets, so that we had quite a lot inside of our shirts when we got to school, and the teacher looked at us when we went up the steps but she didn't say nothing, because what a fella does outside of the schoolyard is not any of the teacher's business, and because she didn't say anything we piled a lot of apples on her desk at recess when she was in another room, and when school took in again and she saw all the apples she said, "I see there has been a shower," and grinned like I used to when I first got my tooth-brush, then whilst the rest of us were getting our lessons and reciting she was chewing apples. A teacher can do that but it is against the rules for anyone else to. And when she went home she took the rest of the apples in her book bag.

When we were going home a man had stopped in front of a store and he had been fishing for he had a trailer with a skiff on it hitched to his car, and while he was in the store we all climb in the skiff and asted him when he come out if we could have a ride, and he said "Sure!" so we did and he went around all the corners he could find on two cheels, and first we would be slammed on one side and then on the other like cracking the whip, and we went so fast we couldn't get out, and so far it took us till past milking time to walk home. I am going to remember what that fella looked like and if I ever meet him when I grow up he will be supprized—if I grow up bigger than he is.

When I got home Annabelle Lee had got into the pantry and pulled a punkin pie down off of the shelf and was setting on the floor with it by her and was scooping all the inwards out of the pie and piling them in her lap. My mother found it out just as I went in the door for the milk pail and she boxed my ear for it. She said if I had came home from school as I ought've and looked after my little sister it couldn't have happened, then she was sorry and said I could have the pie if I wanted it. But I didn't. I gave it to Jubilee.

I am glad tomorrow is Saturday, today was not so good.

Rash On Baby Itched Terribly Cuticura Healed

"When my baby was two months old a rash broke out on his face. It kept getting worse all the time. Later it turned into blisters that would break, and itched and burned terribly. He used to scratch his face until it would bleed. He could not sleep at night on account of the irritation, and kept me awake. His face was badly disfigured.

"A neighbor advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased a cake of Soap and a box of Ointment. After a couple of applications he slept better, and in about a month he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. Steiner, 5622 Ellis Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE B. VINCENT

PUTTING THE BLAME ON HIS BROTHER

"BLESS my whiskers!" exclaimed Mrs. Possum, suddenly interrupting herself. "Where have the other children gone to? I sent them over to the Mole ridge but they must have followed the blind digger's trail. Little sillies! If they didn't scratch Moley up at once they will never catch him now. Being underground is all to his advantage! No angleworm glides through the earth swifter than he. One moment his little snout is poking through the surface. Then's the time to catch him. Delay a moment after the first glimpse of him, and he is safe in a tunnel of his own making deep underneath the dirt!"

Mrs. Possum stood upon her hind legs and anxiously sniffed the air.

"I don't get the scent of those youngsters at all. To be sure, the wind is blowing it away from me and they may not have wandered far. But then, again, they may have! Two-Legs, you have made me forget my duties as a mother. Never before in my life have I neglected my babies.

"Quesk! Pst! Children! Children! Come home at once!

Mrs. Possum's call was between a squeak and a hiss, but it reached the ears of the little Possums, who knew the minute they heard it they had better give heed or things would be the worse for them.

In less time than it takes to tell the story, they fly leaves that lay behind the log began to scutter in all directions. Through them came tearing the little Possums. Hop! Skip! Jump! Over the log leaped the merry youngsters, until Mother Possum was surrounded. Every furry baby tried to tell the tale of his wanderings at once.

"I nearly caught Moley, but Billy pushed me so hard he rolled me into a fern clump," squealed the fattest fellow of the lot.

"I didn't, either. You got in your own way!" squeaked his brother.

"And if those two hadn't taken up so much time scrapping there might have been some chance for the rest of us," hissed the third youngster, disgustedly.

"We almost got him. We would have if—if—if——" cried the crowd, in chorus. And this little Possum boxed that little Possum's ears, and that little Possum pulled another little Possum's tail. And each little Possum tried his best to clear himself of the blame for letting the blind burrower escape.

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

THE MYSTERY

KATIE is by no means dull of perception and I think she fully comprehended the real meaning of the caution I had given her. She knew, by my speech and manner, though I had carefully omitted any direct reference, that I had caught her inadvertent betrayal of her eavesdropping upon Dicky and the red-headed man, but the knowledge of it lay aloft her in the least. She tossed her head and shrugged her shoulders with an air of being forced to accept a post of responsibility.

"All right, ma'am, just as you say you feel. I remember," she said hotly, and I left the kitchen with the innocuous and hurried advice that she go to bed. But I did not go directly back to the veranda. At the risk of having my absence construed as a slight to my guests, I went into the library and sat down for a minute or two, setting into my patchwork quilt of impressions concerning Eleanor Lincoln and the oddly shaped pieces which Katie just had given me.

Upon another occasion I had learned from her little maid's lips that my husband had recognized the red-bearded man as a former acquaintance, probably of his army experience overseas. Astonishing as that information was, it paled beside this story which indicated that Dicky was on confidential terms with the red-bearded man who lived in the shack in the woodland adjoining the farm, and that he shared with him a sort of responsibility for the actions of the vagabond's even more villainous looking companion.

Katie's report of Dicky's conversation with the man gave me also the astonishing confirmation of my fantastic conjecture that he knew much of Miss Lincoln's identity and of the reasons for her terror of the men in the shack. It was knowledge that he had not shared with me, and the remembrance of that fact and of his ill-concealed mirth, after his first visit to the shack housing the vagabonds, as of some secret jest, effectually salved my conscience for my failure to stop Katie's story, based as it was upon her reprehensible propensity for listening to things which do not concern her.

Out of my maze of conjectures I filed away several unmistakable facts in the compartment of my mental card index which I had devoted to Eleanor Lincoln.

The hoot of the owl had been a signaling call from a human voice.

It was a signal familiar to the girl, and the sound of it had so terrorized her that she swooned.

Without an instant's delay Dicky had suspected—or known—what it was, and had dashed out in pursuit of the man.

This companion of the red-bearded man must be the more vicious of the two, and Dicky must be cognizant of some real and imminent danger threatening the girl at his hands.

It was with a feeling of angry resentment against my husband that I finally went back to the veranda. A sinister mystery enveloped the personality of a girl whom at his request I was entertaining almost as an intimate of the family, and he was vouchsafing knowledge concerning it.

As I came through the hall I met a little procession consisting of Katherine, Marion and Junior, patently bound for the second floor. Junior was clinging to Marion's hand and excitedly reminding her of a promise to tell him "all about school," while Katherine was giving him a last-years admonition to lower his voice. I gave Junior his good night kiss, and then as he went upstairs, Katherine whispered an amused warning.

"Mother Graham is getting pretty tired," she said. "She wants to go upstairs, but you know her ideas. She won't stir until you are there to play the hostess."

-o- The New Book -o-

BY FRANCES JENNINGS

A delicately-told little love story, pointed with pathos, simple in plot construction, is Kathleen Norris' new novel, "Barberry Bush." Her latest book is a typical Norris story, rich in characterization and portrayal of character, charmingly and artistically written and, while realistic and human to a certain degree, with that suggestion of the fairy tale thread which allows to creep into her plots.

Mrs. Norris' characters, with few exceptions are chosen direct from everyday life and her plots are woven big to life as it is today. However, as in "Barberry Bush," when the not happily married heroine is in love with another man, makes the opportune discovery that her marriage was illegal, she has that twist to her theme that, although possible, is hardly plausible and is not acceptable to the realistic standards of novels so popular today.

"Barberry Bush" is a woman, otherwise Barbara Atherton, portrayed with an almost unsurpassable sympathy and understanding by Mrs. Norris, whose knowledge of human nature is by no means limited to her own sex. "Barbara" is a whimsical, gentle, loving woman, one of the most delightful of the women created by the artistic pen of Mrs. Norris.

Meets Another

It is Barbara's misfortune to fall in love with a young poet, temperamental, of little material worth, ill-tempered, irascible but loveable without in his childlike trust and simplicity. Upon Barbara's willing but none too capable shoulders falls the task of holding her poet husband to the task of breadwinning for herself and their little daughter. It is characteristic of Barry, that, failing to provide for his wife and children, he later deserts them altogether, no doubt loving them passionately meanwhile, but his own self-pitying, egotistical self more.

As a school teacher in the small town to which she had spent her girlhood Barbara finds happiness for herself and daughter, Kate, and also discovers the love of a boyhood chum and a responsive love within herself. It is then that the plot takes the necessary little twist and the deserted young wife finds herself never to have been married at all and free to marry the man who offers her not only love, but protection and material wealth and happiness.

Falls to Death

On the eve of her second marriage the first husband returns home, still as unsuccessful and still as much in love with his beautiful wife as well as with himself. As Barbara, from an inborn sense of justice, is about to relinquish her new-found happiness for the man she first loved and could always forgive in spite of herself, he comes to a death by slipping, perhaps jumping—for there was some good in Barry—from a cliff, and the heroine's future happiness is assured.

For all its faults, "Barberry Bush," although not the best of the author's stories, is certainly moving and, once read, will not be soon forgotten. Other of Mrs. Norris' delightful novels are "The New Guilt," "Hildegrade" and such earlier ones as "Little Ships" and "Saturday's Child."

WILL DURRANT'S NEW BOOK, "TRANSITION"

WILL DURRANT'S new book "Transition," a mental autobiography, has just been published by Simon and Schuster, Inc. The new book is an attempt to "show the effect, upon one mind, of the great changes which have come upon the religious faith of the western world and, in a lesser way, to show the political experiments and disillusionment of our time as well as to trace the evolution of a fairly typical rebel from Utopian aspiration through a cynical despondency to some measure of reconciliation and content."

It is a picture of the conflict between the old way of thinking and the new, between orthodoxy and science and between fundamentalism and evolution, tracing the author's personal experience through the two sections of the book entitled "the great change" and "the new world". Will Durant is also the author of "The Story of Philosophy," now in its twenty-first edition.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

In all history, no Indian was ever known to have constipation. Nor need YOU. He chewed the bark of a tree called cascara. Today, we have the candy cascaret.

Cascarizing the bowels never forms a laxative habit. If already formed, an occasional cascaret will usually break the habit. For cascara strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, and their need of any aid at all grow constantly less. What other cathartic has this characteristic? The writer knows of none.

An evacuation brought gently about by cascara will, nine times in ten, be followed by full functioning of the bowels on the morrow—and for days after. For there is no REACTION as with sickening salts, or any of the man-made purgatives that go through one's system like a bullet.

Physicians tells us cascara, is the ideal laxative—and the tongue tells us candy cascarets are its ideal form. At least a million people know this; what a pity there are any who don't. Especially parents; because children love to take a cascaret. After which, for days-on-end, the bowels will be seen to work of their own accord.

The only habit from cascara is that of regularity! Cascarets tone and train the bowels. But at the first sign of returning sluggishness another cascaret is as effective as the first.

There isn't a druggist who hasn't cascarets, so WHY experiment with laxatives?—Adv.

O. S. U. FIRST TO GIVE CERAMIC ART COURSE

University Pioneer in Science; Zanesville Youth Enrolls in New Branch

Columbus, Oct. 21—Wilbur M. Smith, Zanesville, is only a freshman in the college of education, Ohio State University, but he is on the way to the distinction of being the first college graduate in America to win the degree of bachelor of ceramic arts.

It will take him four years to complete his course, but if he could be graduated tomorrow he probably could step into at least a score of positions in the Ohio pottery industry, demanding special skill and training. Similar positions elsewhere also would be open to him.

For Smith, who is the son of a Zanesville attorney is the first student to enroll at Ohio State in the recently created four-year course in ceramic art. The supply of ceramic artists until now has come almost entirely from England. If young Smith completes his course he will be graduated he will be the first of a line of American ceramic artists.

With the reorganization last summer of the department of fine arts, a curriculum was provided in ceramic art, calling for a four-year course leading to the degree of bachelor of ceramic arts. The course was set up in response to the need voiced by the ceramic industry in Ohio and elsewhere for men trained in the fine arts as well as in ceramics.

Ohio State University, a pioneer a third of a century ago in the field of ceramics, thus also blazes a new trail in ceramic art. The department of ceramic engineering established here 33 years ago was the first of its kind in the country, just as the new course also is an innovation in American higher education.

Bill Hart Waits Patiently To Get Back in Pictures

FOUR years Bill Hart, once greatest of screen cowboys, has been out of the movies and now he is waiting to get back in again.

The gaunt, tall two-gun man who thrilled millions in a leisurer and less exacting day of the movies now patiently awaits in Hollywood the call of one of the big movie companies to return to work.

"I could make a picture tomorrow—for one of the small companies," says biz Bill Hart, "but I've been among the biggest of them. And I can't cheapen myself now."

Bill Hart got out of the movies four years ago and now it may be that he can't get back. The movie world has turned for its heroes to smooth-faced young film football stars and gay Spanish dandies whose weapons are soft words and a rose. There seems to be no room for an aging cowboy with great hands and features that seem carved from rock.

But Bill Hart isn't fretting much—he's just waiting.

Lloyd Hamilton, the comic with the capricious cap, will be seen in "Rose Marie" starring Renee Adoree.

It seems that everyone of our screen stars must do a prize fight picture. Reginald Denny is next. His new boxing picture has not been titled.

Milton Sills will appear in the screen version of "The Valley of the Giants."

Hollywood has given Jack Dempsey a new nickname. It's "Speedy."

This, in case you are at all interested in the subject, depicts Gilbert Roland's latest idea in love-making.

It will be noticed that he first (presumably by soft words) develops a soulful mood on the part of his lady fair, then closes his eyes and kisses her on the corner of her chin.

The lady fair in this case is Mary Astor.

They are starred in "Rose of the Golden West."

IRON DITCH WORK IS ORDERED BY BOARD

Commissioners Authorize Construction of Project in Montgomery Township

Construction of the Tron ditch in Montgomery Township, petitioned for by William Tron, was authorized by the board of county commissioners at a hearing held yesterday and the county surveyor was instructed to draw up plans and estimates. The next hearing will be called when the surveyor is ready to submit his report.

Objections to the improvement have been filed by Charles and Otto Rouz. The ditch as planned would be 1,300 feet and of tile construction.

A Hindu baby is named when it is twelve days old, usually by the mother. Sometimes the father wishes for another name than that selected by the mother. In that case two lamps are placed over the two names, and the name over which the lamp burns the brightest is the one given to the child.

A decapitated snail, if kept in a moist place, will in a few days grow a new head, and it will be quite as serviceable as the original one was.

HEALTH HINTS For Parents

No. HEALTH HINTS 5

Here's a way to make the most delicate boy hale and hearty, and "hard as nails." A way to build his body, and put on weight. Heed this hint, and no boy or girl of yours need ever take another cathartic!

Most ailments of children begin with being bilious; end the trouble then and there, with a spoonful of California Fig Syrup. Nothing stronger, nothing else. The bowels will do their duty without being forced! If your children have already contracted the laxative habit, fig syrup will wean them away from it.

California Fig Syrup is a purely vegetable product. It will do any child a world of good; it is, in fact, a very wonderful conditioner for children or adults. Its rich, fruity flavor is so delicious, it's no hardship to take! Nor can it harm even an infant! Only one caution: be sure to get the genuine "California Fig Syrup; don't neglect to say "California." It isn't expensive—fifty cents for a generous bottle at all dealers.

Try California Fig Syrup two weeks on any child, and let his altered appearance and action tell the full story! —Adv.

COUNTY LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Morrow County Groups Arrange To Hold Booth Festival

Mt. Gilead, Oct. 21—One more step was definitely taken last night towards the firm establishment of the M. E. Epworth League in Morrow County. Many leagues are now in the state of organization.

For the first time in the history of the league, a county meeting was held in which nearly all Morrow County Leagues were represented. This meeting was held at the home of Rev. C. A. Riggs at Edison with representations from Mt. Gilead, Cardington, Iberia and Edison. The primary purpose of this meeting was to settle definitely the question of holding a "Booth Festival" in which all the leagues of the county would compete. The booths are to be made up by the individual leagues, who assemble various articles such as canned fruits, vegetables, etc., which is all turned over to some charity hospital. It was decided to hold the meeting in the Mt. Gilead M. E. Church on Friday night, Nov. 4.

Organize Cabinet

During the meeting, the question came up as to the organization of a county cabinet. On motion, it was decided that a cabinet would be elected by a committee of members from all leagues. The committee chose the following cabinet, which was approved by all present: president, Rev. C. A. Riggs; secretary, Robert Byrd; first vice president, Leora King; second vice president, Clara McClurg; third vice president, Thelma Inscho; fourth vice president, Paul Sanderson.

JUSTICE RECORDS OPENED FOR REMUS

Contents Will Be Used by Former Bootlegger as His Defense

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21—The department of justice was today ordered by Attorney General John W. Sargent to open all the records of the bureau of investigation concerning the activities of Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., their former ace, and Mrs. Imogene Remus, who was slain by her husband, George Remus, in Cincinnati, on Oct. 6.

The contents of these records will be used by the former "king of bootleggers" as a defense to escape the Ohio electric chair when tried next month.

Remus has contended that his life and liberty are in these government records.

In addition, it was learned that Tom Wilcox, agent in charge of the Detroit office of the bureau of investigation, has been ordered to Washington with a complete report of his investigation of Mrs. Remus and her alleged lover, Dodge. (Wilcox, at the instigation of Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, has been following the movements of Dodge and Mrs. Remus since last December.)

Because of the unexpected privilege of examining these records Attorney Charles Elston, who represents the former Chicago lawyer, announced that it would be unnecessary to take depositions from Attorney General Sargent or any of his assistants.

540 NICARAGUANS KILLED BY MARINES

Two Hndred Others Wounded; Victims Described as "Bandits"

Washington, Oct. 21 — Approximately 540 Nicaraguans—described in state department bulletins as "bandits" — have been killed and upwards of 200 wounded in "battles" with United States Marines since May 15, the day on which the Marines began their extermination campaign, a compilation of officials casualty figures revealed today.

During the same period five Marines have met death and one has been seriously wounded, while four members of the marine-officered native constabulary are listed as having died in battle.

These figures, which show that the Nicaraguans have clashed with the American troops on at least 10 occasions in the past five months, include only the casualties reported to the state or navy departments here or to the American Legation in Managua. Of necessity they do not include the number of Nicaraguans who have fallen and who have been removed from the field of battle by their comrades without the knowledge of the marines. There is little doubt, there have been hundreds of these.

Homecoming Planned in Connection with Delaware-Mt. Gilead Game, Oct. 28

Coach L. J. Miller of the High school faculty, presented plans to Kiwanis, whereby the football game scheduled with Delaware Oct. 28 might become a homecoming. He asked the Kiwanis to help observe this by closing business places between the hours of 3 and 5 p. m.

Local Manager Ray Tennant invited the Kwanians to go over the newly installed equipment of the Central Ohio Telephone Co. with him. This offer was accepted by the majority of the men. The new system is underground with the office and the switchboard on E. Center-st.

System Explained

Beginning in the basement, in which is contained a large battery, which supplies the entire system with current rather than individual sets of batteries, a repair shop, and an elaborate heating plant which uses gas automatically. Mr. Tennant enlightened the Kiwanians as to the uses of the various intricate equipment. From the basement, they moved to the main floor on which is located the desk of the wire chief, Guy Smith. From his desk, every part of the telephone system can be checked, tested, and all breaks or deficiencies located within a few feet. All equipment needing constant care and attention are placed on this floor.

In the upper floor of the building is the new switchboard, a massive and costly piece of mechanism. At this placed the Kiwanians learned why the calling of "Main," "North", or some other name was necessary before the number was given: each set of wires serves five customers with a private line by the use of five different frequencies sent on them. The names are merely a code whereby the operators recognize the frequency.

WASH YOUR KIDNEYS BY DRINKING WATER

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Also Take Some Salts

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted author who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel them from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you may suffer from dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids: to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush, clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to help neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Army-Yale, Michigan-Ohio, Purple-Illini in Spotlight

Great Football Clashes Scheduled in All Sections Of Country Saturday Card

Dedication "Jinx" May Upset Wolverines; Chicago May Win from Pennsylvania for Fisrt Time in History; Indiana Tackles Notre Dame

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 — Army and Yale hold the center of the football stage tomorrow afternoon, but there is such a wealth of fine contests on the big card that no topliners the West Pointers and Elis do not enjoy a monopoly in the day's attractions by any manner of means.

East and west, south and far west will see unfolded some of the great football dramas of the yar, for in addition to the big battle at New Haven, the east has connier drawing cards in the Harvard-Dartmouth game at Cambridge and the Princeton-Cornell contest at Ithaca, to say nothing of the Syracuse-Penn State, Pittsburgh-Carnegie Tech, Washington and Jefferson-Lafayette and other equally interesting affairs.

Mid-West Games

In the middle west all eyes will be centered on the Pennsylvania-Chicago conflict at Chicago but there, too, the counter offerings are unusually colorful with Michigan dedicating its new stadium at Ann Arbor in a game with Ohio State and Northwestern tackling Illinois at Evanston in what looks like one of the biggest conference games of the season. The Wisconsin-Purdue, Minnesota-Iowa, and Notre Dame-Indiana battles also will draw attention.

"Meanwhile the Pacific coast will see California against the Olympia Club at Berkeley. U. S. C. plays California Tech at Los Angeles. Both are minor games."

Below the Mason and Dixon line, Georgia Tech, conqueror of the Alabama Crimson, meets the University of North Carolina, in preparation for the Notre Dame game. Georgia, which defeated Yale, battles Alabama Poly at Columbus, Ga. Vanderbilt seeks to redeem that defeat by Texas in the game with Tulane at Nashville, while Virginia tackles V. P. I. at Charlottesville.

Yale Has Reminder

Nothing like the 33 to 0 debacle which was Yale's lot in the last clash with the West Point eleven, is expected at New Haven tomorrow. Hardly anyone connected with the Blue's gridiron destinies would be willing to predict a victory over the Army eleven but Yale has a remarkably strong machine when Bruce Caldwell is going at his best and there will be a mighty tussle when this really great back faces the Army trio,—Cobb, Wilson and Merrell.

Yale's victory over Brown rather than its defeat by Georgia is a true measure of the greatness of the Blue team. Yale completely outplayed Georgia, as it did Brown, and only the fortunes of war prevented the Elis from securing a victory. The Army has had its goal line crossed three times and has been forced to fight hard for victory in three of its four games.

The chief difficulty with the Cadets is that they are slow in starting due in large measure to the complete readjustment of their attack to conform with the new rules against the shift. Bill Jones has had a full week to get his offensive plays smoothed down after the Davis-Elkins game and it is likely that the Army will flash a more cohesive attack against Yale than it did against the weaker Southerners.

Penn Never Beaten by Stagg

Pennsylvania has a psychological if not a physical advantage over Chicago, for as yet no Pennsylvania team has lowered its colors to the Midway eleven. However, Pennsylvania does not appear to be as invincible as it did a week ago on the eve of the game which saw Penn State route the worthy Quakers, and with Paul Scull and Sheber on the sidelines, Penn will not have its best eleven on the field.

Chicago, despite the fact that it is leading the conference race in games won, is not the best of the mid-western elevens and consequently cannot be regarded as a topheavy favorite over the eastern outfit.

No one appreciates more than Jesse Hawley just how stiff an assignment Dartmouth has drawn against Harvard in the Cambridge stadium tomorrow. Hawley has unpleasant memories of the unexpected setback his Green eleven received last season from a supposedly weak Harvard team and he is not underestimating the Crimson one iota this time. This looks in advance like another fight battle with the odds favoring Dartmouth ever so slightly.

Princeton and Cornell are resuming a football series that was broken off in 1907. Neither of these elevens has been defeated and Princeton has not been scored on. As neither side is crippled by injuries to star players. All the signs seem to point to a Princeton victory because of its driving backfield and its sturdy though inexperienced line.

30 Red And Black Reserves Go To LaRue

YES, THEY'RE WELL TAUGHT WHEN THEY CAN FOOL BACON

Coach Boles Decides His Wooster Gridders Are Too "Slick"

Wooster, Oct. 21—After spending many long hours on the practice field drilling his Wooster gridders to perfect a series of deceptive plays, Coach L. C. Boles decided Saturday at Tiffin that he had taught them too well.

Wooster has a series of spinner plays. Whether or not they are an adaption of Warner's Stanford play to the Wooster short kick formation or whether they are something else Boles doesn't say.

But here is what happened in the Wooster 6 to 0 win over Heidelberg. Wooster used the first of the spinner plays several times in which the pass to another back is faked. Then when the stage was all set, the ball was passed from center to Dave Query. He passed the ball to Blough, who behind Runyan was off around the end like a flash.

A Heidelberg tackle smashed through, crashed into Query and Referee Bacon blew his whistle. Both Bacon and the Heidelberg player got a real surprise when they discovered that Query did not have the ball but that it was 15 yards down the field where a secondary defense man had tackled Blough.

When players get to be such good actors that they deceive the officials, Boles has decided that he has taught too well.

Harding Should Win But Will Have Tough Going; Hinklin, Lewis Recovering

Coach Bohyer's Best Second Stringers Will Carry Colors in Actual Battle; Lineup Not Decided; Bucyrus Comes Here Next Week

BY TOM BUCHANAN
Sports Editor, The Star

Approximately 30 Harding High school reserve gridders will be on the squad that makes the trip to LaRue this afternoon for a clash with the high school team there.

It will be the first time this season that the second stringers will have the opportunity to carry the Harding colors in actual battle. Coach Bohyer is taking a formidable string of reserves and they should come back with the bacon.

No Setup However

The game will be no setup for the locals however as LaRue has been playing a great brand of football this season. They play football in dead earnest and practice at noon so that the players evening chores on the farm will not be interferred with. There are only six boys in the entire high school that are not on the squad. While the Red and Black reserves should w.n a LaRue victory won't be the biggest upset in this week's grid games.

Just what the starting lineup will be Coach Bohyer has not definitely decided. He is taking along every man on the squad with the exception of the first stringers.

Bohyer will select his ends from Perry, Osterholt, Schott and Vanderhoff. For tackles he will have Ansley, Peacock, Haberman, Red Williams, and Miley. Between the tackles there will be Marshall, Williams, Hardee, and Jevas for guards, and Keller and Walker for centers. In the backfield will be Casmer, Tuttle, Snyder, Ruzzo, Morrison, Probst.

From this outfit Coach Bohyer will select his starters. It was eleven men from this bunch that nearly drove over another touchdown against Ashland last Saturday in the closing minutes of the game after the Black and Orange had blown up. Snyder's intercepted forward pass put Harding on the Ashland eight yard line. With two more downs only five yards separated the Red and Black subs from the Ashland goal when the game ended.

Lewis, Hinklin, Recovering

First stringers who may take the trip will not be in uniform. Bus Hinklin, one of Coach Bohyer's best second stringers who suffered a fractured ankle several weeks ago in practice, will see the game. He returned to school yesterday and is reported to be doing nicely. Lewis first string end who had a collar bone cracked in the Upper Sandusky game is also recovering and will probably be in shape to wear the Red and Black uniform by next Saturday when Harding meets Bucyrus at the fairgrounds.

You get a new angle on many a subject by the questions a small boy asks.

DUNDEE TO MEET CANZONERI MONDAY

Scotch-Wop Doped To Leave Ring by K. O. Route

New York, Oct. 21—For the third time within a month in a local ring, a fading champion will answer the challenge of youth when Johnny Dundee squares off against Tony Canzoneri at Madison Square Garden next Monday night.

Two other aging champions, sticking grimly to the game despite their advancing years, have been beaten by younger opponents here recently. Mike McTigue, presented with the light heavyweight title by the New York commission, was dethroned by Tommy Loughran. Jack Brittin, the forty-two-year-old wizard who formerly ruled the welterweights, was outpointed by Hilario Martinez.

The prevailing opinion along canli-row row today was that Canzoneri, the Brooklyn contender, will send Dundee crashing down into fistic oblivion on Monday night. Canzoneri was an 8 to 5 favorite today, and many believe he will win by a knockout. If Dundee is fairly purchased, however, the fight probably will be stopped before Canzoneri is compelled to put over the finishing wallop, for nobody wants to see the gallant Scotch-Wop counted out in his last fight.

Although the setup is not filled as Grimm, Dundee believes he will be fighting against Canzoneri for the world's featherweight title. Johnny retired undefeated from his featherweight championship throne some time ago, resigning his title. He decided to return to the ring and now claims that he is still the champion.

In a public appeal for recognition Dundee reminded the boxing world today that he brought the title back to America by defeating Eugene Criqui of France in 1925, and reiterated that he never has been beaten at the featherweight limit.

Occasionally, you find a reformer who weeps for humanity and doesn't care a whoop for the men he knows.

COMMITTEE CANCELS KENTON MARDI GRAS

Action Taken in Accordance with Stand of City Health Board

Kenton, Oct. 21—In line with the action of the Kenton Board of Health in closing down the schools of the city, with the exception of the high school, the annual community Halloween celebration and Mardi Gras, scheduled for Monday night, Oct. 31, will be cancelled, according to statement made last night by the general committee in charge.

After conferring with health authorities, members of the committee in charge of the festival, sponsored by the Business Men's Club and the Chamber of Commerce, decided upon the cancellation.

The school closing order issued last Sunday night, went into effect Monday of this week and will remain in force for two weeks.

Grads of Ohio Colleges To See Alma Maters in Homecoming Grid Clashes

Denison, Ohio Wesleyan Battle at Granville; Muskies Go to Akron To Meet ZIPPERS; Case at Wooster; Oberlin Primed for Miami

COLUMBUS, Oct. 21—While thousands of Ohioans watch Ohio State and Michigan clash at Ann Arbor, football in Ohio this Saturday will be centered on the Homecoming games of nine colleges of the state.

Denison University will observe its annual Homecoming with a battle with Ohio Wesleyan gridders and the badly crippled Ohio University team will welcome old grads in a tilt with the strong undefeated Wittenberg squad, as the only games in the Buckeye Association league.

Akron University and Muskingum, 1926 Ohio Champions and likely contenders this year, will meet in the feature attraction of the Homecoming ceremonies of the Rubber City school at Akron. A record number of fans from both schools in addition to the graduates will see the contest.

Still smarting under the 14 to 0 defeat handed them last year when they were headed for the championship, Oberlin players will seek revenge from Miami when the latter school observes its homecoming day.

Old graduates of Wooster college will be entertained by Case gridders who will endeavor to turn the tables on the Wayne county team after being defeated last year, 7 to 0.

Westerville will be the scene of the annual match of Otterbein and Baldwin-Wallace at the former school's homecoming observance. The Cleveland school took last year's encounter, 19 to 3.

Other homecomings in the state will be celebrated at Capitol when the Lutherans do battle with the Hiram squad at Rio Grande who will play Morehead College and at Dayton when the Fliers clash with the Quantico Marines. It will be Capitol's first celebration since that school was admitted to the Ohio Conference.

Heidelberg and Ohio Northern will meet in a feature event at Ada, Kenyon will battle Western Reserve at Cleveland and at Cincinnati, Marietta will try to defeat the University of Cincinnati team in other Ohio Conference games Saturday.

Oglethorpe will make an effort to halt the scoring machine of the high-powered St. Xavier eleven in one of the Southern Ohio non-conference tilts. Kent State-Cedarville at Kent and Wilmington-John Carroll at Cleveland will be non-conference attractions in the northern section of the state. Wilberforce will play host to Kentucky.

In northwestern Ohio two games are scheduled with Toledo meeting Bluffton at Bluffton and Defiance playing Findlay at Findlay.

Mid-West Upsets Expected

Chicago Favored To Win From Penn; Northwestern, Illinois May Spill Dope

Buckeyes May Take Dedication Honors Away from Wolverines; Some Go So Far as To Say Indiana May Beat Notre Dame

CHICAGO, Oct. 21—Bigger and better upsets seem to be the bunch of "Iggerdillerra" as they peer over Stagg's array of football battalions this middle western front.

Pennsylvania is here to joust it out with Chicago. Illinois and Northwestern, seven eleven in the conference, are primed for a whale of a fight. Purdue engages Ohio State. Purdue has Mr. Ralph Welch tackles Wisconsin. Both have been beaten. Iowa meets Minnesota. The rambling Notre Dame squares off with Indiana.

Chicago Has Edge

The Penn-Maroon game has the folks of Chicago has turned out to see a "wonder" team because everyone is going to wonder what they will do. A flop at the beginning of the season, the Staggs have developed into a nifty ball club. Penn was looked on as one of the great teams of the east until Brown came along and the Wisenheimers of the seaboard say that the Quakers should still be rated among the greats.

Northwestern and Illinois will stage their scramble before 60,000 people and it can be stated that the battle is worth of that gathering. Neither has been beaten. Illinois hasn't played a conference opponent and for this reason it is difficult to get a good line on Zuppke. The purple has power and because of its win over Ohio State, should win.

The Michigan-Ohio State scrap should be a lulu. Michigan has another great team in the making and Ohio has proved its power. Many look for the Buck eyes to stage a comeback against Michigan and beat the Wolverines flatter than a fried egg.

Minnesota should be just about ripe to lay all over Iowa. The Gophers, with Joesting, are raring to make some ball club since Indiana tied 'em last week and it will be Iowa's luck to be the party of the second part.

Purdue After Badgers

Purdue will spot Ralph Welch along to Wisconsin to prove that the lad is really a star and also to crack the Badgers for past humiliations. Wisconsin is the favorite.

The boys down Indiana way say that Pat Page's Indiana team is primed to hand Notre Dame its first defeat of the season and judging from the team's great showing against Minnesota this is not considered unlikely. The game will be played on Indiana's home field.

At the present time there are five unbeaten teams in the Big Ten conference but after Saturday's game it is possible, because of the uncertainties of the pastime and the unknown strength of some of the performers, that there won't be more than two undefeated elevens on the state by Saturday night.

Vanguard of Ohio Fans Leaves For Michigan Camp

COLUMBUS, Oct. 21— Favored by fair, mild weather forecast to continue over the week-end, the vanguard of thousands of Ohio football enthusiasts today began the trek to Ann Arbor, for the high spot in the 1927 football season, when Ohio State gridders clash with the Michigan Wolverines, their traditional rivals, in their annual contest.

The exodus will carry at least 15,000 Ohioans to the seat of Michigan University, where the new Memorial Stadium will be formally dedicated with the Ohio game. Motor roads, according to all indications, will be choked with automobile traffic all directed Ann Arbor-ward during the next two days, while half a dozen special trains from Columbus and other Ohio cities will take thousands of additional fans.

Despite the disaster at the hands of Northwestern last Saturday, Ohio undergraduates and alumni rooters were hopeful of a victory over Michigan, pointing to the long-standing "jinx" that has beset Big Ten conference teams dedicating new stadiums. With a re-vamped lineup, arranged to offer a fast-moving offensive and a stiffer forward will to halt the Wolverine attack, it was the hope—based as much on the breaks of the game as anything else—of the Ohio rooters that the team might bring home a Wolverine scalp.

AKRON ZIPPERS PLAY MUSKIES SATURDAY

Rubber City Team Badly Battered; Ox Roast To Feature Homecoming

Akron, Oct. 21—A much battered but determined team will take the field for Akron, when the undefeated Zippers meet the undefeated Muskingum eleven at Buchtel Field next Saturday.

Injuries have taken their toll of the Akron men, and an improvised line will attempt to withstand the onslaughters of a team that has scored well over a hundred points in its last two starts.

Pesarick, tackle; Hoopes, guard; and Robinson, end, are out for the season with injuries sustained in practice the last two weeks. Plant, center, Hophins, guard; Russell, guard; and Daily, tackle, are suffering with minor injuries, but will probably get the call to start Saturday.

Coach Blair declares that, although the Muskingum team is four or five touchdowns better than the Rubber City gridders, on paper, the Zippers will be in there to make up in fight what they lack in standing. It is the Homecoming game.

One of the features of the Homecoming will be an ox roast to be held by the "A" Association, athletic lettermen, in Crawse Gym at noon. Nearly a thousand students, faculty and alumni will be fed free.

ASHLAND GRID TEAM APPRECIATES LAYOFF

Seven First Stringers on Hospital Squad; No Game Saturday

Ashland, Oct. 21 — Coach Fred Schmuck has decided to charter a ward at the local hospital for his numerous disabled football men. Seven of the first call men are in bad shape while others appreciate the three day layoff that the college mentor is giving his men.

Captain "Shine" Lerch heads the list of the crippled. Along with him are Kruger, end; Dybo, tackles, Wike and Workman, ends, and Lonero and Johnson, backs. Varsity subs unable to report for workouts include Bancroft and Westlake, ball toters of no mean ability.

Terribly Mussed Up

Lonero and Wike have been handicapped for many weeks while Dybo suffered a badly distributed face in the Akron game. Bancroft, Johnson and Kruger have been ailing since the Wooster fracas three weeks ago.

With no game on the schedule this week, it seems probable that the squad will be in ship shape for the homecoming game here Oct. 29 with the Manchester College team from Indiana as the opposition.

THE ONLY WAY TO END INDIGESTION

Remove the Cause and You Remove the Pain

Nine-tenth of digestive troubles are caused by food fermentation and excess acid in the stomach, and it is only by ending these conditions that permanent relief can be hoped for.

The quickest, safest, and surest way to do this is to take a little "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or whenever pain is felt. This not only stops fermentation and neutralizes excess acid, but exerts a soothing, healing and strengthening influence on the weakened stomach, and induces normal healthy digestion.

That is why millions everywhere recommend "Pape's Diapepsin." Follow their sound advice—get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" from your druggist at once, and insure stomach health, with the fear of indigestion banished forever.—Adv.

BOOSTS SMITH

Al's Boom Gets Support of Former Senator Pomerene

Washington, Oct. 21—Al Smith's boom for the presidency received support today from Ex-Sen. Pomerene of Ohio, one of the government counsel in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial.

In an article in the North American Review, Pomerene said that Smith's religion should be no bar to the White House.

"We are told that he is a Catholic," said Pomerene. "He admits it. What of it? Has his religion made him less honorable as a citizen or less capable as a governor?"

Pomerene declared there would be a great "wailing and gnashing of teeth" among Protestants if "a Catholic or a Jew were to insist that no one should be eligible to high office unless he accepted Catholicism or Judaism."

INDICT WORKERS

Couple in Charge of Ohio Home Accused of Cruelty to Child

Greenville, Oct. 21—Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Albright, superintendent and matron, respectively, of the Darke County Children's Home, were today facing an indictment charging cruelty to a child, and containing three counts against each individual.

The indictment followed the filing of affidavits making similar charges several weeks ago, in which it was alleged that inmates of the home had been cruelly disciplined by the couple.

VETERAN PRISONER PETITIONS FOR PARDON

Waupun, Wis., Oct. 21—After spending 11 years in the state penitentiary here, George Retcek is seeking a pardon.

Retcek was convicted on June 10, 1883, in Manitowoc County Circuit Court of the murder of his wife with an ax.

He was captured later in Milwaukee where he was working on the Bour docks. Following his imprisonment in the county jail at Manitowoc he escaped, and was captured in a hollow pine tree near Manitowoc.

Mocking mirrors

MOCKING shapes of silvered glass that tell the truth. . . . What a tragedy that some women fade so soon! Just a few short years ago, beauty and health were theirs to spare. Now — their mirrors mock them! Wan, thin cheeks, haggard smiles, betray the price of neglect!

It is terrible—the toll that constipation takes in health and happiness. It thieves beauty. It wrecks vitality. It is the cause of much suffering and disease. And all the while it could be so easily relieved! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation—safely, permanently.

Why ALL-BRAN is superior to "part-bran"

A large part of ALL-BRAN is "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the intestines, gently distending them—purifying, eliminating poisonous wastes. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is often too small to do this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN—because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

No more need for pills

How different from habit-forming pills and drugs! Which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak for a few moments to bring out all its delicious flavor. Try it in soups. With other cereals.

But be sure to get genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

OTHER GRID CLASHES TO BE REPORTED

BROKER LOANS SHOW INCREASE

Large Quantities of General Motors and U. S. Steel Snapped Up

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks, irregular; industrial stocks, irregular; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; call money, 3½ per cent; grain, reactionary; copper, firm; oil, irregular; cotton, firm; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady; foreign exchange, steady.

New York, Oct. 21 — Bears in the stock market were put to route today by the strong buying demand which developed for most of the industrial and railroad stocks, which have been sliding downward in recent sessions of the market.

A $40,000 increase in brokers' loans, instead of the expected decline in volume of speculative borrowings, evidencing the increase of marginal holdings of stocks of all kinds, appeared to have furnished the bears with the proper ammunition for an attack on the market. General Motors and U. S. Steel common were thrown out in heavy volume as a "feeler" and prices declined about a point. But buying demand appeared in such large volume that prices were promptly whiped back to a slightly higher level than that of Thursday's close.

Strength and activity of the independent oil stocks was a feature of the day. The growing impression that the heads of the big producing companies, who have been working for a solution of the over-production problem, will finally see their efforts crowned with success, has been reflected in gradual accumulation of oil stocks, and a corresponding scarcity of shares at the low prices.

Continuance of call money at 3½ per cent, for loans over the week-end, constituted an important ally for the bullish interests in Wall Street. Investment buying with the proceeds of the October dividend and interest distributions extended to the stock market as well as to the bond market, stiffening up a number of stocks which have been reactionary of late. Though "business barometers" have not yet shown many signs of fair weather, industrial leaders are confident of a revival of business soon.

When we consider how near to gambling all farming is, it is noteworthy how little the farmer cares for games of chance.

If we had leisure and an income, we should become an amateur scientist. There is always something new to find out.

There are people who never talk about what they think or feel, but always of what they have seen. And they are dull—infinitely.

Maybe it requires more fortitude to meet trouble, sober, but fortitude is a good thing to cultivate.

THREE BELIEVED LOST IN PLUNGE OF PLANE

Quebec, Oct. 21—Count De Lesseps, son of the De Lesseps of Suez Canal fame, his young son and a Russian aviator, Chinchinkoff, today were believed to have plunged into the Gulf of St. Lawrence while flying from Gaspe to Val Brillant.

Wreckage of a plane similar to that flown by Chinchinkoff carrying De Lesseps and his son has been picked up in the gulf, it was revealed today. At the same time, word has been received from Val Brillant that the count has failed to reach there and is long overdue.

Every man is the architect of his own fortune, but he is well advanced in his career before he begins to make blue prints.

PROSPECT FAIR IS UNDER WAY

Professor Stewart To Present Cup to Judging Team Tonight

Prospect, Oct. 21—Smith-Hughes instructors and their classes are watching with interest the activities of the local department, which is sponsoring the two-day Prospect Community Fair which got under way today.

R. L. Albright, head of the local Smith-Hughes Department, and Miss Ruth Thomas, head of the Home Economics classes, which are affiliated in the movement, have been busy with arrangements for the affair for several weeks. Today as the event got underway, both expressed themselves as confident that the fair would be successful and possibly set a precedent among Smith-Hughes and economics departments throughout the state.

To Present Cup

Local interest centered on the program arranged for tonight in connection with the fair. With their outline of plans including a constructive, educational program as well as competitive exhibiting, the committees have secured several speakers of note and the Paul Gast orchestra, which will furnish music.

Among the speakers for tonight's program is Professor Stewart of the State Teachers Training Department, who presents the first prize cup to the Prospect High Livestock Judging team, for their triumph at the Ohio State Fair. The team will also receive a check for $325 for a trip to Kansas City.

C. B. McClelland of the State Vocational Education Department and County Superintendent C. B. Rayburn will deliver addresses.

Old-fashioned contests have been given a prominent place on tonight's program and following the addresses contestants will compete in corn-husking, old time fiddling, hog calling and husband calling.

SERVICES ANNOUNCED FOR CLARIDON M. E. CHURCH

Sunday School will be held at the Claridon M. E. Church Sunday at 10 o'clock with preaching services one hour later. "What do I owe the Christ and His Church?" is the sermon subject announced by Rev. C. B. Stephens of Delaware, the pastor.

Dr. Foster C. Anderson, district superintendent, will deliver the sermon at the Sunday night service at 7:30 o'clock after which quarterly conference will be held.

TAKEN HOME

Mrs. L. H. Hinamon, who underwent a minor operation at City Hospital, was removed to her home, 377 Nuninet, this morning in the M. H. Gunder invalid car.

SHOWER RUTH ELDER WITH EVERY HONOR

American Girl Constantly Cheered and Presented with Flowers

Lisbon, Oct. 21—Honors almost unprecedented are being paid to Ruth Elder, the American girl transatlantic flier, at every port touched by the steamship Limpa, according to a dispatch today from Ponta Delgada.

Miss Elder is suffering from a slight cold, but it is not hindering her activities.

She went ashore at Angra yesterday afternoon, visiting the monument of Don Pedro IV. She was constantly cheered, and many persons presented flowers to her. She was carrying several huge bouquets when she returned to the ship.

The American consul greeted Miss Elder when the Limpa docked at Ponta Delgada. She wore her knickerbockers, a red sweater and an old seaman's cap when she went ashore.

CINCINNATI MAN WILL ADDRESS MEN'S MEETING

Dr. W. Kapp of Cincinnati, general secretary of the brotherhood of the Lutheran Church in the Ohio Synod, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of men of the congregation of St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, tonight at the church. Plans are in progress for organizing a brotherhood in the local church at that time.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Miss Marie Ferguson, colored, of Senate-st, underwent an operation for appendicitis yesterday afternoon at City Hospital. She was removed there in the M. H. Gunder invalid car.

By free publicity the newspapers put millions of dollars into men's pockets and ask nothing for it. They ought to have gratitude, at least.

What we mean by a specially selected diamond

First, a diamond selected from that small choice portion of the world's total output. Second, a diamond pure in color and texture. Third, a diamond that is perfectly cut, for highest brilliancy.

Thus, when we say our diamonds are specially selected, we mean that quality is the first consideration. Which is one reason why we have been chosen by the Gruen Watch Makers Guild to sell its famous timepieces.

RELIEF GIVEN TO 11-YEAR OLD GIRL BY THE KONJOLA

Marion Lady Tells How This New Medicine Benefited Her Daughter.

Konjola is an advanced super-tonic which has brought new life energy to countless Marion people. The action of this medicine upon the organs of the inner system changes half-sick, vigorless men and women to a new feeling of health, regardless of age. A never ending stream of testimonials from Marion residents gives convincing proof of this fact. No other medicine is like Konjola. It is the only remedy today receiving such strong indorsement from people of this section.

Just a few days ago, Mrs. Lucinda Jacobs, well known Marion lady, living at 418 North Grand Ave., this city, made this voluntary statement to the Konjola man at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion, where he is personally meeting the local public each day and explaining Konjola:

"Konjola has been a blessing to my 11 year old daughter," said Mrs. Jacobs, "and I feel like it is my duty to indorse such a medicine to others who are needing it.

"My daughter was a weak and frail child since her birth. When she reached school age her health was very poor. She wouldn't care to eat and naturally was very thin. She was dreadfully nervous and often had crying spells over nothing at all. Her case was very puzzling, and on some occasions she has fallen to sleep in school and would have to be awakened when her class was over. No one seemed to know her trouble and we were all worried over her condition. It seemed like nothing in the world could help her and we just about lost hope.

"We decided to give Konjola a trial and now I want to offer you my thanks for this medicine. Our daughter has gained 12 pounds in weight, and is getting near what she ought to weigh at her age. Her nerves are improved and she is so much stronger and is looking so much better. Some of our neighbors say they have never seen such a change in a child before. Her appetite is returned and she is always hungry. She had a more healthy color in her face and never complains of being sick like she used to.

"I think it is wonderful how Konjola has benefited her and I certainly am glad to give such a medicine any indorsement."

The Konjola man is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main Street, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now being sold by all of the good druggists in every nearby town of this whole section.—Adv.
